Harriman Defies GOP Legislature

Governor-Elect Doubts Its Members Would Dare Oppose Him on Issues

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Governor-elect Averell Harriman says he will go "over the heads" of the Republicans in control of the legislature if necessary to put across his program.

Harriman, carrying the banner of both the Democratic and Liberal parties, says he doubts that the Republican legislators would "dare" oppose his measures after he takes "every chance I can get" to talk to the public on radio and television.

He predicts, however, that there will be occasions when he will have to take his case to the people to get the legislature to support what he calls his "affirmative program."

Harriman made the statements yesterday on the "Citizens' Union Searchlight" television and radio program.

HE FORECAST that the final tally of the more than five million votes cast in last Tuesday's election will give him a larger plurality than is now indicated.

Harriman now stands 8,405 votes ahead of his Republican opponent, U. S. Sen. Irving M. Ives. This lead is based on official canvasses in 11 upstate counties and unofficial figures in the other 51 counties. The canvasses will be made throughout the state.

Harriman expressed hope on the "Searchlight" program that many state problems, including those involving New York city finances and taxes, can be handled on a nonpartisan basis.

Reviewing parts of his program, Harriman promised to give "immediate attention" to the problem of juvenile delinquincy, which he gave top priority.

Answering a question, Harriman expressed hope that he will be able to work well with Attorney General-elect Jacob K. Javits, the only Republican to lead in the statewide balloting. Harriman called the Manhattan congressman "an honorable man" and "a liberal."

HARRIMAN SAID he would "welcome" Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Javits' defeated Democratic-Liberal opponent, as a member of his "team." Harriman added, however, that he had not discussed a state post with Roosevelt and does not know his plans. Roosevelt, who sought the gubernatorial nomination that Harriman won, goes out of Congress at the end of the year.

Speaking of Roosevelt, Harriman said:

"I would welcome him in any capacity on the team because I think he has capabilities and he certainly has courage and is high-minded in his objectives."

Harriman said he sees no reason why Roosevelt's political future should be adversely affected by his loss last Tuesday. "I expect him to be a powerful figure for good for many, many years to come," Harriman added.

Ives Had No Wish to Be Governor

He Is Not Betting On Recanvass Win

Norwich, Nov. 8 (AP) — Sen. Irving M. Ives says he "never desired to be governor" and is not betting on himself to win the office in the official recanvass of last Tuesday's vote.

Ives, the Republican candidate has made a net gain of 1,252 votes in the official recount in 11 counties, trimming Democrat Averell Harriman's unofficial victory margin to 8,405.

THE SENATOR, in his first speech-making appearance since the campaign, told about 400 persons attending an "appreciation dinner" here Saturday night:

"I am not betting on myself because I have never entered any campaign and expected to win. But the Republican party is not through. We will be back."

Ives said that Gov. Dewey had told him about a year ago that he (Dewey) did not plan to run for a fourth term.

"He urged me to run all during the winter and spring, and I accepted because I felt an obligation to the party, but I never desired to be governor," Ives asserted.

DEWEY DID NOT disclose publicly until last September that he did not intend to seek re-election.

Ives said that the decision to press the chapter-by-chapter attack on Harriman during the final days of the campaign was his own. "I made the decision for myself and I believe it was right," he declared.

He said he had undertaken the radio-TV discussions of incidents related to Harriman's business career because "I couldn't approach the promises of my opponent, and I had to stir up the people."

All the charges made by Dewey and himself against Harriman already were part of the public record, Ives contended, and added: "I have never hit below the belt."

Ulster Gives Ives Gain of 252

Senator Irving M. Ives picked up a net gain of 252 votes in a recount of Ulster county votes from last Tuesday's gubernatorial election as the state-wide recanvass cut Averell Harriman's lead to an unofficial 8,045 votes.

That was the over-all picture today as 11 upstate counties had recanvassed their votes, the Associated Press said today.

ULSTER COUNTY'S latest canvass figures gave Sen. Ives a total of 28,058 votes, a gross gain of 356 ballots while Harriman's vote total was placed at 14,437, a gain of 104 ballots.

The new totals, official for 11 counties and unofficial for the others, are:

Harriman 2,554,191; Ives, 2,545,786.

According to the AP report today, the canvass in New York city, where Harriman, the Democratic-Liberal Party candidate, got most of his votes, starts Tuesday.

Ives has picked up a net of 1,252 since unofficial returns from all 62 counties following the election gave Harriman a plurality of 9,657 votes out of more than five million cast.

THE CANVASS figures, reported Saturday, in addition to Ulster, were from Orleans, Genesee and Tioga counties. Figures were reported Friday by Cortland, Schoharie, Washington, Yates, Rensselaer, Schuyler and Suffolk counties.

The totals in the counties which reported Saturday, with the original unofficial tabulation listed second, were:

Ulster: Ives 28,058 — 27,702; Harriman 14,437—14,333.

Orleans: Ives 9,081 — 9,081; Harriman 3,314 — 3,312.

Genesee: Ives 12,131 — 11,788; Harriman 5,786—5,767.

Tioga: Ives 7,932—7,908; Harriman 2,765—2,774.

McCARTHY GETS READY—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) looks over one set of papers and has others on floor beside his open briefcase as he gets ready to answer questions on a CBS television program in Washington Sunday. He again said he expects the Senate to vote to censure him in its special session opening today. (AP Wirephoto).

McC Resolution Due Wednesday

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Senate convened in extraordinary session today to consider censuring Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), and McCarthy himself, forecasting the vote will be against him, said he nevertheless will continue his fight against communism.

Predictions as to when the Senate might get around to voting ranged from two weeks or so upward.

A delay developed just before the Senate convened on the mechanics of getting down to the issue.

A special committee which has recommended censure of McCarthy decided to wait until Wednesday before drafting a formal resolution of censure.

Chairman Watkins (R-Utah), said the decision of a delay was due to the absence of one member of the special committee, Sen. Ervin (D-N. C.), who remained at home because of the death of Gov. William B. Umstead of North Carolina.

Watkins said he would go ahead, however, and present the committee's report. If was made public when the group decided unanimously several weeks ago that McCarthy should be censured for contempt of a Senate subcommittee and for abusive language to an army officer, Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, who was a witness last winter before McCarthy.

McCarthy's assertion that he would keep fighting communism even if censured came just before he went to the Senate floor.

He said he would continue "fighting the dirtiest fighters in the world until the Communists win or until we die."

THE WISCONSIN senator had been presented the patriotic service medal of the American coalition.

He also was presented 22 bound volumes containing over 275,000 signatures of persons in 40 states expressing their protest against the censure resolution.

The signatures were presented by Vincent Ferrari, Queens county, N. Y., postmaster on behalf of the Catholic war veterans of New York who collected the signatures.

The American coalition is described by its officers as consisting of 98 separate organizations which have banded together to "protect the freedoms and independence of the United States." It was formed in 1928.

VICE PRESIDENT Nixon told newsmen he thought the special session could end in less than two weeks.

Nixon noted that Republican Leader Knowlend (Calif.) hoped to get the unusual meeting over in two weeks.

"I think it could break sooner than that, or, if not, it may last a month," the Vice-president said.

On every senator's desk as they came into the chamber was a 20-page pamphlet reproducing articles from the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper.

The top sheet carried in big type, the words "Throw the Bum Out." Below this, in smaller type, were the words, "Official Communist party line on Senator McCarthy.

Cashman Quits For Winter; Has Official Sanction

Albany, Nov. 8 (AP)—Balloonist Garrett Cashman, nursing "skinned hands" and a "few aching parts," today had official sanction to continue experimental soaring with his plywood seat and weather balloons.

But the intrepid, 27-year-old Cashman says he has decided to ground his home-made contraption for the winter after a six-hour flight Saturday that carried him about 50 miles over the Adirondack wilderness.

During most of the flight he was out of sight above the clouds.

CASHMAN, a part-time hypnotist and mail order dancing teacher, made the flight to show the Civil Aeronautics Administration he could control his craft, "Uplift 1" — a couple of pieces of plywood suspended from 80 hydrogen-filled balloons, each about four feet in diameter.

He said he had been wafted along at about 5,000 feet during most of the trip—at one point a navy plane sighted him—but had shot up to 10,000 just before he decided to come down.

HE DESCENDED by popping some of the balloons with a slingshot.

Cashman, who said he would "have to terminate activities until spring" because of the cold weather aloft, figured that another 10 hours in the air will win him a balloonist's license.

His first flight — an unannounced 21-mile hop last September—cost him a $50 fine for flying without a license. Since then he has tried twice to make controlled flights for CAA approval but has been foiled each time by strong winds.

Case Picks Up Votes

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)—First reports from official canvass by county clerks in seven of New Jersey's 21 counties today boosted Republican Clifford P. Case's U. S. Senate lead to 3,780 votes. Major changes were reported in Essex and Hudson county vote totals, with Case picking up 1,012 votes in Essex and Democrat Charles R. Howell gaining 652 in the Hudson figures. Howell lost 101 votes in the Middlesex clerk recheck, and Case gained 11 in Salem county. The vote totals in Bergen, Gloucester and Hunterdon remained the same as those reported in the unofficial totals.

Opening of Thruway Below Newburgh Area Is Put Off

The New York State Thruway is not expected to be opened to Harriman before the end of this month or early December, A. R. Erskine, thruway engineer at Poughkeepsie, said today.

Workmen have been progressing on schedule with the pouring of the unfinished mile of the road south of Newburgh, he said, but because of the fact that the full time will be required for the "curing" of the concrete, no traffic will be allowed on it for about 10 days or two weeks after completion.

Small, unfinished sections of the expressway, were rushed to completion to meet the Oct. 26 opening date, through the use of "rich mixtures" of concrete. This practice was not permitted for the mile to be finished south of the 17K interchange in the Newburgh area.

The pouring of concrete also has been moving along on the Route 28 overpass and is expected to be finished this week. Work also is expected to start soon on the building of the restaurants in the Malden and Ruby areas. A temporary restaurant, now under construction, will open soon near the Route 28 toll booth, and will serve the public in this area until the others are completed.

The restaurants at Malden and Ruby are to be Type A with gas station, snack bar, gift shop lunch room and dining room. The Ruby restaurant will be for New York-bound traffic and that at Malden for traffic headed toward Buffalo.

Hot Shoppes, Inc., will operate the restaurants on the Albany-New York section of the route. The Union News Co., has the Albany - Syracuse section and Restaurant Associates, Inc., the Syracuse-Buffalo section.

Type B restaurants, consisting of gas stations, snack bars, gift shops and lunch rooms are to be built at Modena and Plattekill. The Modena restaurant will be on the side of New York-bound traffic and that at Plattekill will be on the side of north and west-bound traffic.

Bohlen Has Talk With Red Leader

Meets Malenkov; No Blast at U. S.

Moscow, Nov. 8 (AP)—Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov and U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen dined at the same table last night and talked seriously for half an hour afterwards. The occasion was a big Kremlin banquet celebrating the 37th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The traditional Red Square military parade lasted only 20 minutes this year, and an air show was canceled because of an overcast sky. A speech by Defense Minister Marshal Nikolai Bulganin avoided the usual blasts at the United States.

The conversation between Bohlen and Malenkov, amid the hubbub of the party for 2,000 ranking Soviets and foreign diplomats, was the first time the two had gotten together since Stalin's death.

QUESTIONED LATER by reporters, the American envoy gave no hint what they talked about. He only said: "No business was transacted."

An hour-long talk that Malenkov and Communist Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev had with Yugoslav Ambassador Dobrivoje Vidic a little later stirred almost as much curiosity as the Bohlen-Malenkov talk. earlier anniversary speeches by Soviet leaders had hinted at a revival of friendship with Yugoslavia, the only Communist country outside the Soviet bloc.

The gala dinner party, in the Kremlin's ornate St. George Hall, wound up a two-day celebration of Russia's biggest holiday.

Bohlen sat with 27 other guests at the main table. Included were the members of the Soviet Presidium and the British, French, Indian, Burmese, Indonesian, Polish and Communist Chinese ambassador and their wives.

FIVE HUNDRED others ate from buffet tables around the hall, and the feast was spread in a series of other rooms.

The honored guests raised their wine and vodka glasses in 15 formal toasts while an intrigued, evesdropping throng hovered about their table.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, smiling host at the affair, proposed that "both Soviet and American diplomats should strive for better understanding between our two countries."

Bohlen complimented Molotov as the "most experienced diplomat in this room" and drank to his "next visit to Washington." The American envoy then leaned back in his chair and pointed out to reporters that this actually was not an invitation.

U. S. Rep. Victor Wickersham (D.-Okla.) was among the guests who shook hands with Malenkov when the Soviet government chief strolled around the room after dinner.

WICKERSHAM, in the Soviet Union on a tour, said Malenkov asked: "You Americans have no fear of us?"

"No, we have not," the congressman said he replied.

Bulganin made no direct mention of the United States in his speech following the Red Square military review. This was in contrast with last year when he attacked America as warlike.

Speaking from the top of the Lenin-Stalin tomb, the defense minister told the overcoat-clad throng that they must keep building Soviet defenses because "everywhere warmongers

Man, 77, Dies of Exposure; Pinned Under Farm Tractor

Helplessly pinned between a farm tractor and the wall of a building, a 77-year-old handyman died of exposure at the Pioneer Country Club at Greenfield Park, near Ellenville, during the weekend.

The body of Nick Kleminger, who had been employed at the resort for 20 years, was discovered at 9 a. m. Sunday by another employe, Charles Gleditch. The place had been closed for the winter and the two men were alone on the premises at the time, according to a sheriff's office report.

Gleditch notified an area constable, who reported the incident to the Sullivan county sheriff's office. When it was found that the country club is located in Ulster county, the Ulster county sheriff's office was called.

An autopsy, ordered by Coroner Michael A. Galietta, disclosed that death was due to exposure, according to Dr. Herbert Derman of the Kingston laboratory.

Apparently the aged handyman had been pinned against the wall since Saturday afternoon, when he was attempting to start the tractor. He had been last seen in that endeavor about 4 p. m., investigation disclosed.

When sheriff's men arrived at the scene, they found the Farm-All Cub tractor in low gear, with its switch still in the on position and with the starting crank still in place. Kleminger's body was pinned between the

10 Saved, One Dies In Ocean

Was 15 Miles Out Of Red Territory

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP) — The United States strongly protested to Russia today against the shooting down by two Soviet jet-type fighters of an American RB29 "over Japanese territory in the Hokkaido area," and called for reparations.

A terse note delivered by Ambassador Charles Bohlen to the Soviet foreign ministry said:

"THE UNITED STATES government strongly protests this action. It will expect the Soviet government to make all such moral and material reparations as lies within its power."

Ten of the 11 crewmen aboard the RB29 mapping plans parachuted to safety after the craft was shot down yesterday, but the 11th was drowned when he became entangled in his parachute.

A State Department spokesman said the United States would submit a full and complete claim" to Russia later as compensation for the loss of life and the plane destroyed in the crash.

The American plane, on a photo-mapping mission, was shot down in flames.

Press Officer Henry Suydam of the State Department, announcing the protest sent less than 24 hours after the incident, said that as "moral reparations" the United States would demand an apology and appropriate action to "discipline offending members of the Soviet air force."

Angry Charges Made By 10 U. S. Airmen

TOKYO, Nov. 8 (AP)—The U. S. airmen rescued after an attack by two Russian jet fighters, charged angrily today that the Reds pounced without warning on a U. S. photo plane mapping northern Japan and shot it down in flames yesterday.

The 10 men parachuted to safety moments before their big four-motor RB29 smashed into a house in northern Hokkaido, a few miles from the Russian-held Kurile islands. An 11th crewman drowned in the sea after bailing out.

Today, in Tokyo, Capt. Anthony F. Feith, the plane's skipper, told a news conference that his plane was "never closer than 15 miles" to Russian territory.

ASKED WHY since his plane was armed he didn't return the fire, Feith said "I would have liked to." But he said his first thought was to complete the photo mission.

His group commander, Col. Albert Welsh, said Feith was not to be criticized.

"I would compliment before I would criticize," Wash said.

Welsh said plane commanders have standing instructions "to fire if fired upon," but added that "there must have been some misunderstanding (in this case)." However, Welsh warned that attacking planes will get "a different reception in any future incidents of this kind."

Feith told newsmen that he

President Says War Less Likely

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today "the specter of war looms less threateningly" than in a long time "despite the instance of provocation stemming from the shooting down of an American plane by Russia-built fighter craft.

A U. S. air force photo mapping plane was shot down by two Russian jet fighter planes Saturday, according to an air force announcement.

Departing from his text in addressing the 27th convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, the President, said, after declaring the prospects for an enduring and lasting peace are the brightest in years:

"Despite such instances of provocation as that which took place yesterday (SIC) off the coast of Japan, the specter of war looms less threateningly over all mankind."

THE PRESIDENT said that the quest for an "enduring and lasting" peace "must be the overriding goal of our foreign policy."

Addressing a capacity audience in the 3,000-seat Boston Symphony Hall, the President again voiced hope that his "atoms for peace" proposal will open a "new phase" of United States relations with Russia.

To attain . . . enduring peace must ever be the goal of our foreign policy," the Chief Executive said.

He received a rousing, standing ovation at the start of his address which was televised and broadcast locally.

Eisenhower flew here from Washington and was greeted warmly by big crowds which turned out along the 3½ mile route from Logan Airport.

The invocation before Eisenhower spoke was delivered by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston, who termed America "a good land" and "our President is one of its typical sons."

"Spare him," the archbishop

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Washington Post and Times-Herald said today President Eisenhower overrode a 3-1 recommendation from the joint chiefs of staff that would have authorized American attacks on the Chinese mainland to prevent a Communist landing on Nationalist Quemoy. Mothers Caught in Tragedy Show Mutual Compassion

Norwood, Mass., Nov. 8 (AP)—The heartbroken mother of a slain girl and the sobbing mother of a boy accused of the slaying locked in a tearful embrace yesterday in an emotional scene of mutual compassion.

Mrs. Adrienne Makarewicz and Mrs. Mary Annese met in the latter's bedroom yesterday for the first time since Geraldine's nude body was found Friday morning in a two-car garage at the rear of her home.

Cashman Quits For Winter; Has Official Sanction

Albany, Nov. 8 (AP)—Balloonist Garrett Cashman, nursing "skinned hands" and a "few aching parts," today had official sanction to continue experimental soaring with his plywood seat and weather balloons.

But the intrepid, 27-year-old Cashman says he has decided to ground his home-made contraption for the winter after a six-hour flight Saturday that carried him about 50 miles over the Adirondack wilderness.

During most of the flight he was out of sight above the clouds.

CASHMAN, a part-time hypnotist and mail order dancing teacher, made the flight to show the Civil Aeronautics Administration he could control his craft, "Uplift 1" — a couple of pieces of plywood suspended from 80 hydrogen-filled balloons, each about four feet in diameter.

He said he had been wafted along at about 5,000 feet during most of the trip—at one point a navy plane sighted him—but had shot up to 10,000 just before he decided to come down.

HE DESCENDED by popping some of the balloons with a slingshot.

Cashman, who said he would "have to terminate activities until spring" because of the cold weather aloft, figured that another 10 hours in the air will win him a balloonist's license.

His first flight — an unannounced 21-mile hop last September—cost him a $50 fine for flying without a license. Since then he has tried twice to make controlled flights for CAA approval but has been foiled each time by strong winds.

Opening of Thruway Below Newburgh Area Is Put Off

The New York State Thruway is not expected to be opened to Harriman before the end of this month or early December, A. R. Erskine, thruway engineer at Poughkeepsie, said today.

Workmen have been progressing on schedule with the pouring of the unfinished mile of the road south of Newburgh, he said, but because of the fact that the full time will be required for the "curing" of the concrete, no traffic will be allowed on it for about 10 days or two weeks after completion.

Small, unfinished sections of the expressway, were rushed to completion to meet the Oct. 26 opening date, through the use of "rich mixtures" of concrete. This practice was not permitted for the mile to be finished south of the 17K interchange in the Newburgh area.

The pouring of concrete also has been moving along on the Route 28 overpass and is expected to be finished this week. Work also is expected to start soon on the building of the restaurants in the Malden and Ruby areas. A temporary restaurant, now under construction, will open soon near the Route 28 toll booth, and will serve the public in this area until the others are completed.

The restaurants at Malden and Ruby are to be Type A with gas station, snack bar, gift shop lunch room and dining room. The Ruby restaurant will be for New York-bound traffic and that at Malden for traffic headed toward Buffalo.

Hot Shoppes, Inc., will operate the restaurants on the Albany-New York section of the route. The Union News Co., has the Albany-Syracuse section and Restaurant Associates, Inc., the Syracuse-Buffalo section.

Type B restaurants, consisting of gas stations, snack bars, gift shops and lunch rooms are to be built at Modena and Plattekill. The Modena restaurant will be on the side of New York-bound traffic and that at Plattekill will be on the side of north and west-bound traffic.

Bohlen Has Talk With Red Leader

Meets Malenkov; No Blast at U. S.

Moscow, Nov. 8 (AP)—Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov and U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen dined at the same table last night and talked seriously for half an hour afterwards. The occasion was a big Kremlin banquet celebrating the 37th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The traditional Red Square military parade lasted only 20 minutes this year, and an air show was canceled because of an overcast sky. A speech by Defense Minister Marshal Nikolai Bulganin avoided the usual blasts at the United States.

The conversation between Bohlen and Malenkov, amid the hubbub of the party for 2,000 ranking Soviets and foreign diplomats, was the first time the two had gotten together since Stalin's death.

QUESTIONED LATER by reporters, the American envoy gave no hint what they talked about. He only said: "No business was transacted."

An hour-long talk that Malenkov and Communist Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev had with Yugoslav Ambassador Dobrivoje Vidic a little later stirred almost as much curiosity as the Bohlen-Malenkov talk. earlier anniversary speeches by Soviet leaders had hinted at a revival of friendship with Yugoslavia, the only Communist country outside the Soviet bloc.

The gala dinner party, in the Kremlin's ornate St. George Hall, wound up a two-day celebration of Russia's biggest holiday.

Bohlen sat with 27 other guests at the main table. Included were the members of the Soviet Presidium and the British, French, Indian, Burmese, Indonesian, Polish and Communist Chinese ambassador and their wives.

FIVE HUNDRED others ate from buffet tables around the hall, and the feast was spread in a series of other rooms.

The honored guests raised their wine and vodka glasses in 15 formal toasts while an intrigued, evesdropping throng hovered about their table.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, smiling host at the affair, proposed that "both Soviet and American diplomats should strive for better understanding between our two countries."

Bohlen complimented Molotov as the "most experienced diplomat in this room" and drank to his "next visit to Washington." The American envoy then leaned back in his chair and pointed out to reporters that this actually was not an invitation.

U. S. Rep. Victor Wickersham (D.-Okla.) was among the guests who shook hands with Malenkov when the Soviet government chief strolled around the room after dinner.

WICKERSHAM, in the Soviet Union on a tour, said Malenkov asked: "You Americans have no fear of us?"

"No, we have not," the congressman said he replied.

Bulganin made no direct mention of the United States in his speech following the Red Square military review. This was in contrast with last year when he attacked America as warlike.

Speaking from the top of the Lenin-Stalin tomb, the defense minister told the overcoat-clad throng that they must keep building Soviet defenses because "everywhere warmongers

President Says War Less Likely

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today "the specter of war looms less threateningly" than in a long time "despite the instance of provocation stemming from the shooting down of an American plane by Russia-built fighter craft.

A U. S. air force photo mapping plane was shot down by two Russian jet fighter planes Saturday, according to an air force announcement.

Departing from his text in addressing the 27th convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, the President, said, after declaring the prospects for an enduring and lasting peace are the brightest in years:

"Despite such instances of provocation as that which took place yesterday (SIC) off the coast of Japan, the specter of war looms less threateningly over all mankind."

THE PRESIDENT said that the quest for an "enduring and lasting" peace "must be the overriding goal of our foreign policy."

Addressing a capacity audience in the 3,000-seat Boston Symphony Hall, the President again voiced hope that his "atoms for peace" proposal will open a "new phase" of United States relations with Russia.

To attain . . . enduring peace must ever be the goal of our foreign policy," the Chief Executive said.

He received a rousing, standing ovation at the start of his address which was televised and broadcast locally.

Eisenhower flew here from Washington and was greeted warmly by big crowds which turned out along the 3½ mile route from Logan Airport.

The invocation before Eisenhower spoke was delivered by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston, who termed America "a good land" and "our President is one of its typical sons."

"Spare him," the archbishop

Claims President Opposed Attacks

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Washington Post and Times-Herald said today President Eisenhower overrode a 3-1 recommendation from the joint chiefs of staff that would have authorized American attacks on the Chinese mainland to prevent a Communist landing on Nationalist Quemoy. The paper said the joint chiefs' recommendation had the backing of Secretary of State Dulles.

Man, 77, Dies of Exposure; Pinned Under Farm Tractor

Helplessly pinned between a farm tractor and the wall of a building, a 77-year-old handyman died of exposure at the Pioneer Country Club at Greenfield Park, near Ellenville, during the weekend.

The body of Nick Kleminger, who had been employed at the resort for 20 years, was discovered at 9 a. m. Sunday by another employe, Charles Gleditch. The place had been closed for the winter and the two men were alone on the premises at the time, according to a sheriff's office report.

Gleditch notified an area constable, who reported the incident to the Sullivan county sheriff's office. When it was found that the country club is located in Ulster county, the Ulster county sheriff's office was called.

An autopsy, ordered by Coroner Michael A. Galietta, disclosed that death was due to exposure, according to Dr. Herbert Derman of the Kingston laboratory.

Apparently the aged handyman had been pinned against the wall since Saturday afternoon, when he was attempting to start the tractor. He had been last seen in that endeavor about 4 p. m., investigation disclosed.

When sheriff's men arrived at the scene, they found the Farm-All Cub tractor in low gear, with its switch still in the on position and with the starting crank still in place. Kleminger's body was pinned between the

Mothers Caught in Tragedy Show Mutual Compassion

Norwood, Mass., Nov. 8 (AP)—The heartbroken mother of a slain girl and the sobbing mother of a boy accused of the slaying locked in a tearful embrace yesterday in an emotional scene of mutual compassion.

Both promised to pray for the other's child today as slain Geraldine Annese, 15, was to be buried and Peter Makarewicz, also 15 was to answer in court to a charge of murder.

Mrs. Adrienne Makarewicz and Mrs. Mary Annese met in the latter's bedroom yesterday for the first time since Geraldine's nude body was found Friday morning in a two-car garage at the rear of her home.

Dist. Atty. Myron G. Lane said the girl was strangled in a sex attack.

"I'm sorry—so sorry," sobbed Mrs. Makarewicz.

"I'm sorry for you, too, Mrs. Annese cried. "May God have mercy on your boy."

Mr. and Mrs. Makarewicz later went to the funeral home and

Was 15 Miles Out Of Red Territory

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP) — The United States strongly protested to Russia today against the shooting down by two Soviet jet-type fighters of an American RB29 "over Japanese territory in the Hokkaido area," and called for reparations.

A terse note delivered by Ambassador Charles Bohlen to the Soviet foreign ministry said:

"THE UNITED STATES government strongly protests this action. It will expect the Soviet government to make all such moral and material reparations as lies within its power."

Ten of the 11 crewmen aboard the RB29 mapping plans parachuted to safety after the craft was shot down yesterday, but the 11th was drowned when he became entangled in his parachute.

A State Department spokesman said the United States would submit a full and complete claim" to Russia later as compensation for the loss of life and the plane destroyed in the crash.

The American plane, on a photo-mapping mission, was shot down in flames.

Press Officer Henry Suydam of the State Department, announcing the protest sent less than 24 hours after the incident, said that as "moral reparations" the United States would demand an apology and appropriate action to "discipline offending members of the Soviet air force."

Angry Charges Made By 10 U. S. Airmen

TOKYO, Nov. 8 (AP)—The U. S. airmen rescued after an attack by two Russian jet fighters, charged angrily today that the Reds pounced without warning on a U. S. photo plane mapping northern Japan and shot it down in flames yesterday.

The 10 men parachuted to safety moments before their big four-motor RB29 smashed into a house in northern Hokkaido, a few miles from the Russian-held Kurile islands. An 11th crewman drowned in the sea after bailing out.

Today, in Tokyo, Capt. Anthony F. Feith, the plane's skipper, told a news conference that his plane was "never closer than 15 miles" to Russian territory.

ASKED WHY since his plane was armed he didn't return the fire, Feith said "I would have liked to." But he said his first thought was to complete the photo mission.

His group commander, Col. Albert Welsh, said Feith was not to be criticized.

"I would compliment before I would criticize," Wash said.

Welsh said plane commanders have standing instructions "to fire if fired upon," but added that "there must have been some misunderstanding (in this case)." However, Welsh warned that attacking planes will get "a different reception in any future incidents of this kind."

Feith told newsmen that he

Engaged Dutchess Pair Found Dead

Poughkeepsie, Nov. 8 (AP)—A couple who announced their engagement just nine days ago were found shot to death early today in their auto. Police termed it a case of apparent murder and suicide.

The victims were identified as Claude Arbuckle, 51, who was shot through the head, and Mary Schmidt, 32, of nearby Wappingers Falls, whose body bore bullet wounds of the head and body.

A .32-caliber automatic was found beside the bodies on the front seat of the car, in a parking lot just south of here.

Arbuckle owned a tavern in Poughkeepsie, and Miss Schmidt worked in a local department store.

Friends said the couple planned to marry in January. They had announced their engagement Oct. 30.

Authorities were continuing their investigation.

Man Says Plea Was To Escape Publicity

John Patrick Gerber, whose address was listed as 578 Broadway, was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace I. C. Barnes of New Paltz after he pleaded guilty to a third degree assault charge on Saturday.

When questioned as to the nature of the charge, Trooper George Whiting, who made the arrest, said the charge was one of "simple assault" that constitutes "the mere putting of a hand on someone." The charge was that Gerber grabbed Joyce Simmons, 16, of New Paltz, on the arm, according to the trooper.

Gerber told The Freeman today he took hold of the girl in order to ascertain whether she was all right after she had fallen from her bicycle when Gerber's car was forced by an oncoming car to pass close to her on Route 32 near New Paltz, and that his action apparently was misinterpreted by a passing motorist and by the girl in the excitement after the mishap.

Gerber said he pleaded guilty as charged in order to escape "publicity," having been assured by Justice Barnes that he would not "make any publicity" if he pleaded guilty.

Justice Barnes admitted to The Freeman this morning that, "I told him I wouldn't make any."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The stock market was strong today in the early afternoon with several issues shooting far ahead.

As a general rule, prices were up between 1 and 2 points, with not too many leaders in that category.

U. S. Gypsum was up 15 at 225, Union Pacific added 3 points at 144, and Goodrich was up 5 at 114. Johns-Manville gained 3 at 84¼.

Trading was quite heavy at a pace around three million shares for the day, one of the highest totals of the year. On Friday when the market was falling slightly, volume came to 2,950,000 shares.

Most major divisions were higher including the steels, motors, aircrafts, radio-televisions, metals, oils, airlines and railroads. Farm implements were neglected along with distillers while chemicals were mixed, and utilities held steady.

President Says

prayed, "the vexation of idle and unprofitable criticism from the captious or unthinking.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE sounded a call for better relations between nations on the heels of another incident straining relations—the shooting down of a U. S. air force photo-mapping plane by "two Russian-built Mig-type fighters."

The air force described the attacking planes that way in announcing the episode yesterday. It occurred Saturday off northern Japan. The State Department has protested.

Eisenhower made no mention of the incident in his prepared text, but declared: "It is not paradoxical in our peaceful efforts that we maintain powerful military forces. For in a world partly dominated by men who respect only guns, planes and tanks, these weapons are essential to our survival."

The President noted he was speaking on the 12th anniversary of the landing of the first American troops in North Africa during World War 2.

"AS WE LOOK BACK on that day, and on the most terrible war in human history, we again resolve that there must never be another war," Eisenhower declared.

"Today the fathers and mothers of our land rejoice that the possibility of peace is more promising than at any time in recent years....

"All of us are profoundly thankful that the terrible specter of war looms less threateningly over all mankind."

The President said the struggle for a lasting world peace must be waged through the United Nations and in every other possible way. Then he declared:

"I know all Americans are hopeful that our proposal for an international pool of atomic energy resources will inaugurate a new phase in negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"I deeply believe that, regardless of the Soviet decision, the cause of peace will be furthered as we go ahead with friendly nations to turn this new science to the arts of peace."

Four Break Prison

Woodbridge, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)—Four inmates broke out of the Bordentown reformatory, but the fling at freedom ended in death for two of them. One was killed and another injured fatally in the crash of their stolen car while being chased by guards last night. A third was hurt seriously in the smashup on U. S. Route 1 here. The fourth was still at large early today. The car—reported stolen from in front of a tavern about four miles from the institution—rammed into a concrete abutment. The crash scene was about 40 miles from the "medium security" reformatory.

Krevat Hotel Is Damaged by Fire

Fire in the Krevat Hotel at Briggs Highway, about five miles from Ellenville, Saturday night destroyed the upper floor of the three-story building and damaged the roof and other parts of the hotel.

The fire was reported about 7:15 p. m. and two trucks from Ellenville were sent to the scene when a two alarm report was sent out. The hotel had been closed for the season and the owner, Morris Krevat, had gone to Florida. Police reported the building unoccupied and since there was no caretaker at the hotel the origin of the fire was undetermined. No estimate of the damage was available.

Eight in Family, Two Others Die Of Heater Fumes

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Ten persons, including six children, were killed yesterday by fumes from a faulty gas water heater in a crowded tenement apartment.

The tragedy brought city officials to the scene. They opened a thorough investigation and the health commissioner advised a city-wide drive to avoid similar deaths in the future.

Found dead early yesterday were a family of eight and two guests who had come for a baptismal celebration the next day.

THE VICTIMS were Edubirges Gonzales, 33; his wife, Victoria, 29; their six children; Domingo Motos, 31, and his wife, 27.

The youngest Gonzales child, a four-month-old girl, was to be baptized yesterday, neighbors said, and was taken dead from her bed already dressed in her pink baptismal gown.

The Motos had spent the night in the Gonzales home after a prebaptismal party. Orphaned by the tragedy were their own three sons, aged 4 to 8, who had stayed elsewhere with relatives.

TWO WINDOWS in the three-room apartment were open but there was not enough ventilation to remove the fatal gases. One city official said enough carbon monoxide had been formed to "kill off an entire squadron of men in half an hour."

Assistant Health Commissioner Jerome Trichter said gas pressure in the apartment pipes was too high and could have caused the heater to function improperly.

Shoots Husband, Self

Landenburg, Penna., Nov. 8 (AP)—A middle-aged woman shot her one-time socialite husband to death yesterday, then killed herself because, in the words of a farewell note, there was "no hope for the future." Police, who raced to the couple's rented home in this Philadelphia suburb while a state trooper tried to stall the wife on the telephone, found the body of Robert H. Eisenbrey, Jr., 47, on one bed. His wife, the former Paula E. B. Meredith, 51, was dead on the other, shot through the heart. A pistol lay near her body. Mrs. Eisenbrey's note told of financial distress, her husband's ill health and the couple's despair leading to the tragic end.

Workers Take Vote

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Nov. 8 (AP)—Some 3,500 CIO workers here vote at two mass meetings today on a package wage proposal expected to settle a seven-month labor dispute at two key atomic plants—one here, the other at Paducah, Ky. Union leaders called a meeting of night shift workers at 10 a. m. (EST). The day shift meets tonight. The 1,000 Paducah atomic workers will pass on the compromise plan tomorrow night. The two plants produce the nation's entire supply of fissionable uranium-235 for atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Signing Is Delayed

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A hitch developed today over signing of the Dixon-Yates power contract. Atomic Energy Commission members told the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee that the AEC may be able to report on the matter by Thursday morning. The committee said in a statement that "pending final approval and signing of the contract by both parties, the joint committee decided to proceed with the hearing" it has been holding. An afternoon session was scheduled.

Rosendale Man Is Held in Bail on Charge of Theft

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Six men charged with grand larceny in the theft of more than $10,000 worth of electronics equipment were each held in $2,500 bail yesterday. Magistrate Ludwig Glowa set November 10 for a hearing.

The six arrested Saturday and charged with the theft of the equipment from the Harvey Radio Company, of 103 West 43rd street, were listed as:

George Johnson, 44, of 382 Riverdale avenue, Yonkers, and James W. Dunn, 52, of 122 Woodworth avenue, Yonkers, both porters and company employes for eight years; Lennox Hollinsid, 67, of 1890 Seventh avenue, another porter and a 24-year Harvey employe; Oswald O'Brien Jr., of 1239 Boston Post road, the Bronx, part-time helper at the Harvey Company; his father, Oswald O'Brien Sr., of the same address, a transit authority cashier, and VINCENT O'BRIEN, 48, OF ROSENDALE, superintendent of a building adjoining the Harvey Company.

During a recent inventory Harvey Sampson, president of the company, found that between $10,000 and $15,000 worth of stock—including television receivers, radios and crates of costly vacuum tubes and other parts—was missing.

Sampson hired private investigators who brought their findings to city detectives.

The four detectives said the six worked this way:

The regular porters, often assisted by young Oswald, put hugh trash cartons on hand trucks, placed stolen merchandise on the bottoms, then covered the loot with a thick layer of trash.

They trundled the "rubbish" to Vincent O'Brien, superintendent of the next building, who was helped frequently by his brother, Oswald, Sr.

The detectives said that Vincent stored the stolen merchandise for short periods in his own building, then helped transport it to his Rosendale home and the homes of the other members of the ring.

The detectives said they had recovered about $10,000 worth of Harvey property from the homes of the five New Yorkers, and that the state police had informed them that a lot more" was in Vincent's farmhouse in Rosendale.

Admits Setting Fires

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A Purple Heart veteran of World War 2 was seized in Brooklyn today, charged with arson. Police said he admitted setting 14 fires in the last two months. "I'm glad I was caught," Thomas Gargan, 37, was quoted. "My conscience has been bothering me. I don't know what I'm doing when I get 'beered up.'" Police said Gargan, a cook and father of two, was arrested in a tavern early today, after he was spotted leaving a 48-family apartment house where a fire had broken out.

Cabinet Resigns

Guatemala, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Guatemalan cabinet resigned today. It was considered a gesture of courtesy to President Carlos Castillo Armas, who took his oath of office Saturday for a term to continue until March 1960.

Mothers Caught

prayed at Geraldine's bier. The accused boy's mother fell to her knees and wept: "Oh, my God, my dear, dear God, have mercy."

Mrs. Annese arrived at the funeral home a short time later and again the two grief-stricken mothers embraced and wept as they tired to console each other.

Other members of each family shook hands and expressed mutual sorrow.

The Makarewicz and Annese families live in three-family houses separated only by a vacant lot. Geraldine and Peter knew each other nearly all their lives but they seldom went out on social engagements together.

Lane said Makarewicz signed a statement saying he hid in the garage until Geraldine came home from a double date about 10 p. m. Thursday night and called to her as she walked by.

Lane said the girl's clothing was scattered about the garage and there was evidence of a "terrific struggle." The body was discovered the next morning.

Review Is Refused

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A decision that the State University of New York could ban national fraternities and sororities from the campuses of 22 of its units successfully weathered a challenge before the Supreme Court today. The high tribunal refused to review, thus letting stand, the ruling handed down by a special three-judge Federal Court in New York. It was appealed to the high tribunal by Sigma Tau Gamma, Delta Kappa, Inc., and others. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal, saying no substantial federal question was involved.

Engaged Dutchess Pair Found Dead

Poughkeepsie, Nov. 8 (AP)—A couple who announced their engagement just nine days ago were found shot to death early today in their auto. Police termed it a case of apparent murder and suicide.

The victims were identified as Claude Arbuckle, 51, who was shot through the head, and Mary Schmidt, 32, of nearby Wappingers Falls, whose body bore bullet wounds of the head and body.

A .32-caliber automatic was found beside the bodies on the front seat of the car, in a parking lot just south of here.

Arbuckle owned a tavern in Poughkeepsie, and Miss Schmidt worked in a local department store.

Friends said the couple planned to marry in January. They had announced their engagement Oct. 30.

Authorities were continuing their investigation.

front of the tractor and the wall.

Investigations were conducted by Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg, County Investigator Arthur H. Brown and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Gentile for the sheriff's office, and by Sgt. James Mahoney of the state police.

Kleminger has no known relatives. His body was removed to the Pulling Funeral Home for burial.

Kleminger and Gleditch lived together at the country club, the sheriff's office said. No search was made when Kleminger failed to come back Saturday night, as it had been his practice occasionally to remain away all night, authorities were told.

Man Says Plea Was To Escape Publicity

John Patrick Gerber, whose address was listed as 578 Broadway, was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace I. C. Barnes of New Paltz after he pleaded guilty to a third degree assault charge on Saturday.

When questioned as to the nature of the charge, Trooper George Whiting, who made the arrest, said the charge was one of "simple assault" that constitutes "the mere putting of a hand on someone." The charge was that Gerber grabbed Joyce Simmons, 16, of New Paltz, on the arm, according to the trooper.

Gerber told The Freeman today he took hold of the girl in order to ascertain whether she was all right after she had fallen from her bicycle when Gerber's car was forced by an oncoming car to pass close to her on Route 32 near New Paltz, and that his action apparently was misinterpreted by a passing motorist and by the girl in the excitement after the mishap.

Gerber said he pleaded guilty as charged in order to escape "publicity," having been assured by Justice Barnes that he would not "make any publicity" if he pleaded guilty.

Justice Barnes admitted to The Freeman this morning that, "I told him I wouldn't make any."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The stock market was strong today in the early afternoon with several issues shooting far ahead.

As a general rule, prices were up between 1 and 2 points, with not too many leaders in that category.

U. S. Gypsum was up 15 at 225, Union Pacific added 3 points at 144, and Goodrich was up 5 at 114. Johns-Manville gained 3 at 84¼.

Trading was quite heavy at a pace around three million shares for the day, one of the highest totals of the year. On Friday when the market was falling slightly, volume came to 2,950,000 shares.

Most major divisions were higher including the steels, motors, aircrafts, radio-televisions, metals, oils, airlines and railroads. Farm implements were neglected along with distillers while chemicals were mixed, and utilities held steady.

prayed, "the vexation of idle and unprofitable criticism from the captious or unthinking.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE sounded a call for better relations between nations on the heels of another incident straining relations—the shooting down of a U. S. air force photo-mapping plane by "two Russian-built Mig-type fighters."

The air force described the attacking planes that way in announcing the episode yesterday. It occurred Saturday off northern Japan. The State Department has protested.

Eisenhower made no mention of the incident in his prepared text, but declared: "It is not paradoxical in our peaceful efforts that we maintain powerful military forces. For in a world partly dominated by men who respect only guns, planes and tanks, these weapons are essential to our survival."

The President noted he was speaking on the 12th anniversary of the landing of the first American troops in North Africa during World War 2.

"AS WE LOOK BACK on that day, and on the most terrible war in human history, we again resolve that there must never be another war," Eisenhower declared.

"Today the fathers and mothers of our land rejoice that the possibility of peace is more promising than at any time in recent years....

"All of us are profoundly thankful that the terrible specter of war looms less threateningly over all mankind."

The President said the struggle for a lasting world peace must be waged through the United Nations and in every other possible way. Then he declared:

"I know all Americans are hopeful that our proposal for an international pool of atomic energy resources will inaugurate a new phase in negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"I deeply believe that, regardless of the Soviet decision, the cause of peace will be furthered as we go ahead with friendly nations to turn this new science to the arts of peace."

Four Break Prison

Woodbridge, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)—Four inmates broke out of the Bordentown reformatory, but the fling at freedom ended in death for two of them. One was killed and another injured fatally in the crash of their stolen car while being chased by guards last night. A third was hurt seriously in the smashup on U. S. Route 1 here. The fourth was still at large early today. The car—reported stolen from in front of a tavern about four miles from the institution—rammed into a concrete abutment. The crash scene was about 40 miles from the "medium security" reformatory.

Krevat Hotel Is Damaged by Fire

Fire in the Krevat Hotel at Briggs Highway, about five miles from Ellenville, Saturday night destroyed the upper floor of the three-story building and damaged the roof and other parts of the hotel.

The fire was reported about 7:15 p. m. and two trucks from Ellenville were sent to the scene when a two alarm report was sent out. The hotel had been closed for the season and the owner, Morris Krevat, had gone to Florida. Police reported the building unoccupied and since there was no caretaker at the hotel the origin of the fire was undetermined. No estimate of the damage was available.

Eight in Family, Two Others Die Of Heater Fumes

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Ten persons, including six children, were killed yesterday by fumes from a faulty gas water heater in a crowded tenement apartment.

The tragedy brought city officials to the scene. They opened a thorough investigation and the health commissioner advised a city-wide drive to avoid similar deaths in the future.

Found dead early yesterday were a family of eight and two guests who had come for a baptismal celebration the next day.

THE VICTIMS were Edubirges Gonzales, 33; his wife, Victoria, 29; their six children; Domingo Motos, 31, and his wife, 27.

The youngest Gonzales child, a four-month-old girl, was to be baptized yesterday, neighbors said, and was taken dead from her bed already dressed in her pink baptismal gown.

The Motos had spent the night in the Gonzales home after a prebaptismal party. Orphaned by the tragedy were their own three sons, aged 4 to 8, who had stayed elsewhere with relatives.

TWO WINDOWS in the three-room apartment were open but there was not enough ventilation to remove the fatal gases. One city official said enough carbon monoxide had been formed to "kill off an entire squadron of men in half an hour."

Assistant Health Commissioner Jerome Trichter said gas pressure in the apartment pipes was too high and could have caused the heater to function improperly.

Shoots Husband, Self

Landenburg, Penna., Nov. 8 (AP)—A middle-aged woman shot her one-time socialite husband to death yesterday, then killed herself because, in the words of a farewell note, there was "no hope for the future." Police, who raced to the couple's rented home in this Philadelphia suburb while a state trooper tried to stall the wife on the telephone, found the body of Robert H. Eisenbrey, Jr., 47, on one bed. His wife, the former Paula E. B. Meredith, 51, was dead on the other, shot through the heart. A pistol lay near her body. Mrs. Eisenbrey's note told of financial distress, her husband's ill health and the couple's despair leading to the tragic end.

Workers Take Vote

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Nov. 8 (AP)—Some 3,500 CIO workers here vote at two mass meetings today on a package wage proposal expected to settle a seven-month labor dispute at two key atomic plants—one here, the other at Paducah, Ky. Union leaders called a meeting of night shift workers at 10 a. m. (EST). The day shift meets tonight. The 1,000 Paducah atomic workers will pass on the compromise plan tomorrow night. The two plants produce the nation's entire supply of fissionable uranium-235 for atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Signing Is Delayed

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A hitch developed today over signing of the Dixon-Yates power contract. Atomic Energy Commission members told the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee that the AEC may be able to report on the matter by Thursday morning. The committee said in a statement that "pending final approval and signing of the contract by both parties, the joint committee decided to proceed with the hearing" it has been holding. An afternoon session was scheduled.

Rosendale Man Is Held in Bail on Charge of Theft

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Six men charged with grand larceny in the theft of more than $10,000 worth of electronics equipment were each held in $2,500 bail yesterday. Magistrate Ludwig Glowa set November 10 for a hearing.

The six arrested Saturday and charged with the theft of the equipment from the Harvey Radio Company, of 103 West 43rd street, were listed as:

George Johnson, 44, of 382 Riverdale avenue, Yonkers, and James W. Dunn, 52, of 122 Woodworth avenue, Yonkers, both porters and company employes for eight years; Lennox Hollinsid, 67, of 1890 Seventh avenue, another porter and a 24-year Harvey employe; Oswald O'Brien Jr., of 1239 Boston Post road, the Bronx, part-time helper at the Harvey Company; his father, Oswald O'Brien Sr., of the same address, a transit authority cashier, and VINCENT O'BRIEN, 48, OF ROSENDALE, superintendent of a building adjoining the Harvey Company.

During a recent inventory Harvey Sampson, president of the company, found that between $10,000 and $15,000 worth of stock—including television receivers, radios and crates of costly vacuum tubes and other parts—was missing.

Sampson hired private investigators who brought their findings to city detectives.

The four detectives said the six worked this way:

The regular porters, often assisted by young Oswald, put hugh trash cartons on hand trucks, placed stolen merchandise on the bottoms, then covered the loot with a thick layer of trash.

They trundled the "rubbish" to Vincent O'Brien, superintendent of the next building, who was helped frequently by his brother, Oswald, Sr.

The detectives said that Vincent stored the stolen merchandise for short periods in his own building, then helped transport it to his Rosendale home and the homes of the other members of the ring.

The detectives said they had recovered about $10,000 worth of Harvey property from the homes of the five New Yorkers, and that the state police had informed them that a lot more" was in Vincent's farmhouse in Rosendale.

Admits Setting Fires

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—A Purple Heart veteran of World War 2 was seized in Brooklyn today, charged with arson. Police said he admitted setting 14 fires in the last two months. "I'm glad I was caught," Thomas Gargan, 37, was quoted. "My conscience has been bothering me. I don't know what I'm doing when I get 'beered up.'" Police said Gargan, a cook and father of two, was arrested in a tavern early today, after he was spotted leaving a 48-family apartment house where a fire had broken out.

Cabinet Resigns

Guatemala, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Guatemalan cabinet resigned today. It was considered a gesture of courtesy to President Carlos Castillo Armas, who took his oath of office Saturday for a term to continue until March 1960.

Mothers Caught

prayed at Geraldine's bier. The accused boy's mother fell to her knees and wept: "Oh, my God, my dear, dear God, have mercy."

Mrs. Annese arrived at the funeral home a short time later and again the two grief-stricken mothers embraced and wept as they tired to console each other.

Other members of each family shook hands and expressed mutual sorrow.

The Makarewicz and Annese families live in three-family houses separated only by a vacant lot. Geraldine and Peter knew each other nearly all their lives but they seldom went out on social engagements together.

Lane said Makarewicz signed a statement saying he hid in the garage until Geraldine came home from a double date about 10 p. m. Thursday night and called to her as she walked by.

Lane said the girl's clothing was scattered about the garage and there was evidence of a "terrific struggle." The body was discovered the next morning.

Review Is Refused

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A decision that the State University of New York could ban national fraternities and sororities from the campuses of 22 of its units successfully weathered a challenge before the Supreme Court today. The high tribunal refused to review, thus letting stand, the ruling handed down by a special three-judge Federal Court in New York. It was appealed to the high tribunal by Sigma Tau Gamma, Delta Kappa, Inc., and others. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal, saying no substantial federal question was involved.

Some Bridge Hands Play Themselves

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

It isn't necessary to think hard about every single bridge hand, because some hands practically play themselves. The trouble is that nobody rings a bell to tell you when to think and when to relax. The only safe policy, therefore, is to think about every hand—even those that look like routine affairs.

Take today's hand, for example, played in last year's national championships. The bidding was the same at both tables of a team match, and at both tables West opened the king of diamonds.

At the first table East didn't bother to think. He played the encouraging nine of diamonds on his partner's king. West naturally led another diamond, and the party was over. South ruffed, drew three rounds of trumps, and ran the five clubs, discarding one of the losing hearts from the dummy. The defendants could make only two heart tricks, and declarer thus made his contract.

At the other table the defenders were Johnny Crawford and B. Jay Becker, who will be defending their open-team championship at this year's national championship in Atlanta during the first week of December.

Crawford opened the king of diamonds, and Becker did some thinking, just as he always does.

Becker reflected that his partner had bid and rebid diamonds. It was therefore likely that Crawford had six diamonds, and that declarer therefore had only one. What could Crawford have in the way of defensive strength for his penalty double of four spades? Certainly not clubs, with the ace and king of that suit in the dummy, and certainly not trumps, in view of South's strong bidding.

Becker reflected that his partner had heart strength. There was only one way to make sure of a prompt switch to hearts, and Becker adopted this way by overtaking the king of diamonds with his ace.

At the second trick he led the deuce of hearts, thus indicating that he had a high card in the suit. (A player who has no high card in a suit and therefore cannot stand a return lead will open the suit with a high-spot card rather than with a low card.) Crawford naturally read the meanings of this lead and the defenders promptly rattled off three heart tricks to defeat the contract.

Operation Scheduled

Hollywood, Nov. 8 (AP)—Marilyn Monroe was scheduled for minor surgery today at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. She entered the hospital yesterday. Her physician said a "minor gynecological operation" would keep her in the hospital for about four days.

Yule Trade Prospects Are Cheering Many Merchants

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Christmas trade prospects—with customers believed in a better buying mood than last year—cheer merchants in most cities.

Prices on gifts will be about the same or a little lower this year. But many store owners are expecting to equal and maybe surpass last year's dollar sales volume. Since the largest trading of the year is crowded into the final weeks, the results of the holiday selling make or break the year's earnings record for most stores.

PROMOTION PLANS are well along. The National Retail Dry Goods Assn. reports most member stores plan to match last year's record advertising.

The trade is going in heavily this year for gift packaging. A large array of items will be decked out in holiday garb to lure the shopper. Some of the packages are designed for double duty — made usable as containers of various sorts after the gift is removed.

This year merchants will have the advantage of one more shopping day between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Some 12 million Americans will receive more than one billion dollars in Christmas Club checks this month, for a new record high. Retailers expect almost half of that sum to be spent for Christmas gifts.

And Americans are about as well heeled this year as last. The Commerce Department estimates that, after paying taxes, Americans will have about 253 billion dollars to spend this year. Some of that should still be available for Christmas buying.

THE NRDGA reports three-fourths of the merchants expect business to be satisfactory this holiday season. The majority say they look for enough of an increase in trade in the next six weeks to bring sales volume for 1954 up to last year's total. So far this year, sales have trailed by about two per cent.

Some merchants are rather gloomy about the profit outlook. Rising operating costs have cut into profit margins and more than a third of the merchants expect their net earnings after taxes will be lower than last year.

Store executives say there's a distinct trend this year toward religious scenes for window displays. Some merchants who tried this last year report that this helped answer a growing criticism in recent years of the commercializing of Christmas.

IMPORTED GIFTS will equal or top last year's selection, merchants say. Toys, novelties and children's articles lead the list of imports. Britain will be a heavy supplier of goods for the Christmas trade. But Germany has made the biggest gain in this market this year, with increased gift imports reported also from Japan and Italy.

Sales of toys are expected to top last year's volume and to approach the billion dollar mark at retail for the first time. With the number of small fry increasing every year, the toy makers are a pretty happy breed.

Merchants are counting on customers being more generous in their gift buying this year, because now the economy is on the uptick, while last Christmas people were worried about their jobs because the economy was sliding from the peak hit in mid-1953.

Retailers always keep their fingers crossed, however, when they think about the weather. Severe cold and blustering days just before a Christmas could cut heavily into store traffic. And many a good intention about being generous in gift buying might die aborning and never materialize as a jingle in the store's tills.

Some Bridge Hands Play Themselves

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

It isn't necessary to think hard about every single bridge hand, because some hands practically play themselves. The trouble is that nobody rings a bell to tell you when to think and when to relax. The only safe policy, therefore, is to think about every hand—even those that look like routine affairs.

Take today's hand, for example, played in last year's national championships. The bidding was the same at both tables of a team match, and at both tables West opened the king of diamonds.

At the first table East didn't bother to think. He played the encouraging nine of diamonds on his partner's king. West naturally led another diamond, and the party was over. South ruffed, drew three rounds of trumps, and ran the five clubs, discarding one of the losing hearts from the dummy. The defendants could make only two heart tricks, and declarer thus made his contract.

At the other table the defenders were Johnny Crawford and B. Jay Becker, who will be defending their open-team championship at this year's national championship in Atlanta during the first week of December.

Crawford opened the king of diamonds, and Becker did some thinking, just as he always does.

Becker reflected that his partner had bid and rebid diamonds. It was therefore likely that Crawford had six diamonds, and that declarer therefore had only one. What could Crawford have in the way of defensive strength for his penalty double of four spades? Certainly not clubs, with the ace and king of that suit in the dummy, and certainly not trumps, in view of South's strong bidding.

Becker reflected that his partner had heart strength. There was only one way to make sure of a prompt switch to hearts, and Becker adopted this way by overtaking the king of diamonds with his ace.

At the second trick he led the deuce of hearts, thus indicating that he had a high card in the suit. (A player who has no high card in a suit and therefore cannot stand a return lead will open the suit with a high-spot card rather than with a low card.) Crawford naturally read the meanings of this lead and the defenders promptly rattled off three heart tricks to defeat the contract.

Yule Trade Prospects Are Cheering Many Merchants

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Christmas trade prospects — with customers believed in a better buying mood than last year—cheer merchants in most cities.

Prices on gifts will be about the same or a little lower this year. But many store owners are expecting to equal and maybe surpass last year's dollar sales volume. Since the largest trading of the year is crowded into the final weeks, the results of the holiday selling make or break the year's earnings record for most stores.

PROMOTION PLANS are well along. The National Retail Dry Goods Assn. reports most member stores plan to match last year's record advertising.

The trade is going in heavily this year for gift packaging. A large array of items will be decked out in holiday garb to lure the shopper. Some of the packages are designed for double duty — made usable as containers of various sorts after the gift is removed.

This year merchants will have the advantage of one more shopping day between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Some 12 million Americans will receive more than one billion dollars in Christmas Club checks this month, for a new record high. Retailers expect almost half of that sum to be spent for Christmas gifts.

And Americans are about as well heeled this year as last. The Commerce Department estimates that, after paying taxes, Americans will have about 253 billion dollars to spend this year. Some of that should still be available for Christmas buying.

THE NRDGA reports three-fourths of the merchants expect business to be satisfactory this holiday season. The majority say they look for enough of an increase in trade in the next six weeks to bring sales volume for 1954 up to last year's total. So far this year, sales have trailed by about two per cent.

Some merchants are rather gloomy about the profit outlook. Rising operating costs have cut into profit margins and more than a third of the merchants expect their net earnings after taxes will be lower than last year.

Store executives say there's a distinct trend this year toward religious scenes for window displays. Some merchants who tried this last year report that this helped answer a growing criticism in recent years of the commercializing of Christmas.

IMPORTED GIFTS will equal or top last year's selection, merchants say. Toys, novelties and children's articles lead the list of imports. Britain will be a heavy supplier of goods for the Christmas trade. But Germany has made the biggest gain in this market this year, with increased gift imports reported also from Japan and Italy.

Sales of toys are expected to top last year's volume and to approach the billion dollar mark at retail for the first time. With the number of small fry increasing every year, the toy makers are a pretty happy breed.

Merchants are counting on customers being more generous in their gift buying this year, because now the economy is on the uptick, while last Christmas people were worried about their jobs because the economy was sliding from the peak hit in mid-1953.

Retailers always keep their fingers crossed, however, when they think about the weather. Severe cold and blustering days just before a Christmas could cut heavily into store traffic. And many a good intention about being generous in gift buying might die aborning and never materialize as a jingle in the store's tills.

UNREACHED YOUTH

On the fringes of society, on the outskirts of any social group, loiters the unwanted and neglected child. The social service worker calls such children the unreached youth. The child may be a lonely straggler, or one of a gang of anti-social beings. He is an emotionally deprived child. He is either a delinquent, or is on his way to delinquency. These children have known no affection, no acceptance, no approval. They are not wanted, they are not included anywhere.

Social service workers have pondered long over these problem children. They will not come to settlement houses for fear of being rebuffed. With all the fine facilities and well trained staffs many settlement houses now maintain, workers are aware they are not reaching a large and an important segment of youth. These children who have been isolated from normal society are the ones who form gangs, wind up in court on charges ranging from possession of narcotics to murder.

A brave program was initiated in Los Angeles and is now being carried on in many of our major cities. Social service workers are working singly among these gangs. The job is to become acquainted with the children, gain their confidence and be included in their gang.

The worker is tested again and again by the children, but once he has proved himself to be their friend, he can begin to channel their interests into wholesome activities. The work is slow, tedious, and arduous. The progress is not steady, but encouraging results have been reported.

Many children have been guided into constructive work and play groups. Many more roam untouched. This is not an overnight job. The worker is faced with hostility, suspicion, cruelty and anger. He must guide and re-shape the warped worlds within which each of these children lives. He must bridge the years of neglect and dislike these children have known with the warmth of his own friendship.

The basis of this project turns on the one fragile thing these children need and the worker can offer. Friendship.

Strap hanging on streetcars can be fun, an Italian inventor believes. His strap which plays a tune when grasped will turn rush-hour miseries into music. Perhaps a little of the same treatment around the house would help, too, when the day's routine gets drab.

EX-CANDIDATES

Whatever else one can say about the elections, they are not good clean fun for candidates. Ask the wife of a candidate, win or lose. Ask the husband of a wife-candidate. Ask a bachelor-candidate's dog.

The place no candidate stayed long was home. When he did he was on the phone. When he wasn't home his wife was on the phone saying he was out at a meeting. This was close enough. If he wasn't holding a meeting, he was organizing one or trying to find one. Sometimes he walked the streets talking to anybody, saying nothing, being pleasant.

Even the simplest words like yes and no lost meaning for him. When he said yes, he meant maybe; when he said no, he meant maybe; he never said maybe, even when taxed, because his true position might offend somebody. No matter what he said he tried to appear sincere and agreeable.

Then came the inevitable Tuesday.

The winner will go to Washington on a five-figure salary where several hundred thousand people know exactly how to take it away. If he's a new hand he's going to save the country until he learns better. If he's an old hand, he knows better. In any case he's a perpetual candidate.

The loser, only yesterday on the road to statesmanship and service to his country, goes home. If his neglected wife still likes him, if for all the doubletalk he still has friends, if his business doesn't fail, he'll make out.

It's not good clean fun, any way it's looked at. But without them both, cheerful losers and suddenly-sobered winners, American democracy could not function.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THERE WAS NO TREND

As the election figures are studied, no trend is found, no unmistakable public response to any great party pronouncements or a public challenge to party officials. It is impossible to say that the election was pro- or anti-Eisenhower. The narrow margins are convincing that the Republicans might have managed to win hands down had they not, with characteristic ineptitude, embroiled themselves in intra-party conflicts in several states. On that, of course, there will be wide disagreement both as to cause and effect and one can let the subject pass without too much concern at this time.

The question is of the future. President Eisenhower continues to speak of the moderate approach to public problems which describes inadequately what that approach is. Who desires an immoderate approach and what is the nature of it? Until we know the extremities, it is impossible ever to know where the middle is. In Roosevelt's time, the phrase used to be "left of center," with the center undefined. Perhaps the reason for this queer election is that no one can truly state what anyone believes to be the truth.

During the campaign, when it was generally held that the Democrats, supported by organized labor, would win an enormous victory, it was often suggested that President Eisenhower would declare himself as a one-term President, that he would not run in 1956. No authority was ever cited for such a statement, but it was, from a political standpoint, a confusing one, because if it becomes generally believed, it can increase the conflicts within the Republican Party by stimulating too many ambitions. It is true that President Eisenhower has made no public pronouncement on the subject.

It is customary in the United States for a President to run for two terms, even if he is not always elected to the second term. President Eisenhower is entitled to a second chance in 1956 and it ought to be understood that he will take it. If that is now iterated, the Republican aspirants will have to step back to await their opportunity. No one in the Republican Party comes out of this election so greatly confirmed by the American people as to be an outstanding contestant for President Eisenhower's post. There still is no successor in party leadership to Senator Robert A. Taft.

In the Democratic Party, no one has created for himself so great a reputation as to be outstanding. While Adlai Stevenson assumed active leadership in the campaign, making speeches almost daily all over the country, the result of the election is not sufficient to establish that his participation in the campaign made much difference. No other Democratic personality emerged as an astonishing figure, except J. Strom Thurmond, whose write-in victory was surprising to the country, but which undoubtedly was the result of special local conditions in South Carolina with which other parts of the country are not familiar. Averell Harriman, whom friends before Election Day were grooming for the Presidential nomination, received too narrow a majority to be regarded as significant from a national standpoint. He may now even have difficulty in controlling the New York delegation to the next Democratic Convention.

The elimination of Thomas E. Dewey as a political leader in New York cannot be ignored. Three times elected as Governor, twice a candidate for President, organizer of the nomination of Dwight Eisenhower at the 1952 Republican Convention, Dewey could not carry his chosen successor, Irving Ives, to victory. The narrowness of the Harriman vote indicates that Ives could have won were there not a protest refusal to vote in the election by enough Republicans to make a difference. The defeat of Ives makes Jacob Javits, the Attorney General, the leader of his party in the State. Javits is closely connected with the Liberal Party and therefore he is likely to continue to be opposed by conservative Republicans.

In the New York situation, where men do unfortunately vote along religious and racial lines, in recent elections a tendency has appeared to substitute an Italian Catholic for an Irish Catholic in both parties. An analysis of election districts would indicate that the Irish Catholic Democrats have reasserted their strength by rejecting Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., for Attorney General. He lost in strictly Democratic districts to Jacob Javits, a Republican with Liberal Party leanings, who is a Jew. This unusual result was anticipated by nobody.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE JAUNDICED PATIENT

When a patient becomes jaundiced, the first thought is that the liver has been obstructed in some way and this must be cleared by some method or methods if necessary. Dr. Franklin M. Hanger, Professor of Medicine at Columbia University, states that approximately one-third of all jaundiced patients present a baffling diagnostic problem despite countless efforts to classify and catalogue the underlying causes of hyperbilirubinemia (jaundice) and despite the many ingenious procedures employed to differentiate icterus (yellow coloring) due to biliary obstruction from that caused by the liver itself.

When no complications are present, irrespective of cause, obstructive jaundice is usually gradual in onset, with dark urine and light-colored stools. The liver is often somewhat enlarged and tender and there is often itching of the skin which is considered important as an aid to diagnosis. Laboratory tests show increased amounts of bilirubin (the orange-red pigments of bile) in the blood.

Once the presence of obstructive jaundice is established, the physician is confronted with the practical problems of trying to find the cause of the obstruction and deciding whether operation is advisable because there may be many nonsurgical conditions present, such as acute or chronic cholangiolitis (inflammation of the bile ducts), blockade of the bile ducts and inflammation of the pancreas.

It is because there are these other nonsurgical causes of jaundice which may be present that Dr. Hanger suggests a period of observation for several weeks to study the condition unless there are definite symptoms such as a tense, distended gall bladder or the development of a mass in the upper abdomen which would indicate the need for operation to explore the gall bladder.

During the period of observation, the jaundiced patient should be kept on bed rest so that any change, no matter how small, in the laboratory findings will be significant. Where jaundice persists, these patients usually require an exploratory operation. Other conditions causing jaundice may be due to a disorder of the liver itself, such as an infection, poisons (excessive alcoholism), air hunger, deficiency in the diet, and run-down conditions of the whole system. Once the cause of the jaundice has been found, there should be no delay in operation, if operation is considered necessary, except in those cases which have an obviously hopeless outlook.

"Of Course It'll Be a Posthumous Award, Comrade"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — As this column is written on the day after elections, the Senate race was still so close it could fall either way. The pattern indicated that Senate contests were being decided more on personalities than issues, with many sound voters' decisions. With Senate Republican ranks divided as they were in the last Congress, the Democrats would appear to have an advantage of voting strength even though the GOP organizes and controls the committees.

The result in the House is in keeping with the historical record that the party in power loses strength in a mid-term election. The Republicans threw everything they had into the fight to overcome their handicap. This included more television and radio time, all the influence which an administration in power commands over promises of contracts and jobs, more campaign money, more manpower and somewhat more mud. But they weren't enough to overcome the trend.

POLITICIANS NO MORE than get one election out of the road than they have to start thinking about the next one.

In the light of the 1954 election results a few facts about 1956 stand out clearer than they did before.

The prospect of President Eisenhower being a candidate to succeed himself is now definitely thinned. It has been fairly evident for some time that he is not anxious to have a second term. The Republicans have no other candidate of the President's stature.

The campaign waged by Vice President Richard M. Nixon this year has raised some doubt as to his effectiveness. While he showed tremendous energy and enthusiasm, his tactics did not bring the desired results.

By contrast, Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson looks better than he did in 1952. If anything offset President Eisenhower's final campaign drive and appeals, it was the two windup speeches of ex-Governor Stevensen. He earned his place as the recognized spokesman for his party, closing ranks that were broken at Chicago.

Democrats, however, are traditionally a more united party when in the minority than when in majority control. The one big uncertainty on their horizon now is whether the Texas Democratic congressional leaders—Speaker Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon Johnson—will challenge Stevenson's leadership in charting a program for the party in the next two years.

THIS COULD BE AN IMPORTANT matter almost immediately in the selection of a new Democratic National Committee chairman to succeed the resigning Steve Mitchell.

If the Democratic forces in the new Congress can hold together in the next two years as they have held in this year's campaign, their party's prospects cannot be minimized.

But with power comes responsibility. Strategically, the Democrats may be in a less favorable position in control of the House at least, than they would be if the Republicans retained control.

Completely out of power, the Democrats would be free to criticize whatever they didn't like about the Eisenhower program, building up issues as they did in the last session. In control of congressional committees in even only one house of Congress, the Democrats must share burdens of office and take part of the blame for whatever happens.

Farm policy, defense spending, public works and tax reduction offer the best examples of what is at stake. All will be major issues in 1956.

IF THE DEMOCRATS set out to reverse the 1954 farm bill by moving back to rigid 90 per cent price supports, the obvious effect will be higher government spending to buy bigger surpluses.

Democrats in the last Congress and in the campaign criticized Republican reduction of national defense funds and curtailed appropriations for government power and reclamation projects. Similarly, the Democrats proposed more direct aid to reduce unemployment through public works.

If now the Democrats are able to force through larger government spending programs and at the same time put over a tax cut for lower income brackets, the government's fiscal position is in for another beating. It will mean only further unbalancing of the budget and a threat of more inflation.

This is the biggest pitfall which the now cocky Democrats have to hurdle in the two years ahead.

Misstatements May Bring Failure of Two Points in McCarthy Censure Paper

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 8 — Two glaring misstatements of fact—errors that have astonished parliamentarians of long experience on Capitol Hill—have been found in the Watkins committee report which may mean the collapse of two of the three points in the censure resolution proposed against Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin.

These misstatements of the law and the precedents will prove embarrassing to Senators Lehman of New York, Douglas of Illinois, Humphrey of Minnesota, and a number of other senators on the so-called "Liberal" side who will be abondoning their convictions and reversing themselves if they accept the doctrine laid down in the Watkins report that the Senate is a "continuing body."

The point at issue concerns the flat statement made in the Watkins report that, because the Senate is a "continuing body," Senator McCarthy can be punished for something that happened during his prior term of Congress. The exact opposite—that the Senate is not a "continuing body"—was vigorously contended by a large number of so-called "Liberals" in the Senate just 22 months ago.

The loose language of the Watkins committee report which is disputed by the parliamentarians is as follows:

"Senate rule XXXII provides that the legislative business of the Senate shall be continued from session to session, and that the legislative business which remains undetermined at the close of the next preceding session of that Congress shall be resumed as if no adjournment had taken place. This rule makes it clear that all legislative business continues from session to session."

The report then immediately draws this conclusion: "The Senate has the power to censure a senator for conduct occurring during a prior term."

But the Watkins committee report is factually wrong, because the Senate rules do not provide for any such continuity in the status of legislation. When this question was last debated on January 6, 1953 in connection with an effort to remove the ban on changes in the cloture rules, Senator Lehman of New York, Democrat, who has recently been one of the archfoes of Senator McCarthy, said:

"Obviously, the continuance in office of 64 senators does not mean that the Senate, as an organized body, continues beyond the expiration of the Congress of which the Senate is an integral part. That would be an impossible contradiction.

"When the Congress dies, the Senate, as an organized body, dies, too. It is revived, as the House is, on the third day of January when the new Congress begins its term. The fact that 64 senators remain in office provides a bridge of personal continuity. But that continuity has no relationship to the fact that at the end of the term of the whole Congress the whole Congress is finished, and that includes the rules of the Senate."

Senator Lehman filed a brief prepared under the auspices of the 1952 leadership conference on civil rights, which included the American Civil Liberties Union, the Americans for Democratic Action, and many labor unions and religious and veterans' organizations. This made an even stronger legal case against the concept that the Senate is a "continuing body." After pointing out that legislative business may be carried over from session to session only of the same Congress, the brief says:

"It is clear from the rule (XXXII) that legislative business lapses at the end of each Congress so that committee hearings, committee reports, Senate debate and even progress through the Senate calendar are all for naught if the legislative business has not been completed by that time."

Senator Douglas of Illinois, Democrat, said in the same debate:

"Despite the hold-over of two thirds of its members in each new Congress, it is conceded by everyone that the Senate is not a continuing body for the consideration of legislation, executive appointments, treaties, officers or committees. There is no basis for a different conclusion on the matter of rules."

Even the brief submitted at that time by the Republican Policy Committee sponsored by the late Senator Taft on the other side of the debate contained the following concession:

"No direct precedent has been found in the form of a Senate ruling either on the question (1) whether the Senate is a continuing body, or (2) whether its rules are continuing."

While the Senate failed by its subsequent vote to permit the previous rules to be discarded in favor of an amendment to restrict debate, the vote was taken on that issue directly rather than on whether the Senate was a "continuing body."

The other grave error in the Watkins Committee report is a misleading statement on the matter of precedents. The committee's language was as follows:

"A member may be censured even after he has resigned. Precedents in both the Senate and House for expulsion or censure for conduct occurring during a preceding Congress may be found in 'Hind's Precedents'."

But a careful examination of the same source—"Hind's Precedents"—shows that there is not a single case of such conduct occurring in a prior term which had become known to Congress in such prior term. In the McCarthy case, on two of the three points charged against him the information was available before his old term expired.

Only the third count—the Zwicker case — occurred during the same term in which the action for censure was brought. "Hind's Precedents" also reveals that such censure as occurred after a member resigned was in connection with proceedings initiated at the same term and before the resignation occurred, or else on court convictions which became final during a subsequent term.

There is no parallel to the McCarthy case cited in "Hind's Precedents," but the Watkins report gives the erroneous impression that there have been such precedents on which censure has been voted. Actually, the committee for some strange reason omitted mention of those precedents in which both the Senate and the House deliberately refused to vote censure for conduct disclosed during the previous term of a member. The Watkins Committee apparently accepted the draft written by counsel unfamiliar with the legal precedents involved. Yet the Senate is expected to act impartially on the basis of such a defective document. It was a hastily done job.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The results and implications of that naive farce which Woodrow Wilson, with a straight face, called our solemn referendum are pleasantly jumbled. Never before did a national election provide satisfaction for everyone as this one did. Everybody got a door-prize.

In New York, Averell Harriman was elected governor, a rebuke to pretensions of intelligence and civic responsibility in the electorate. But, in the same process, the second son and namesake of a prophet who is by the way of becoming a New York deity, was defeated for attorney general by Jacob Javits, a Republican, so-called, whose "program" is practically identical with that of the Roosevelt-Truman machine and ADA.

So the Republicans elected a "Republican" and whacked a Roosevelt by the name of Franklin D. so hard that he bawled in his tent.

But Herbert Lehman, the chief of the international Get-McCarthy movement, elected another banker of fabulous riches and vast international ramifications, meaning Harriman. And Jake Javits, who beat Junior, also is a Get-McCarthy man and a minion of the Dewey-Eisenhower chapter of the Get-McCarthy deal.

Where does this leave us, then?

Well, the Democrats beat Dewey's man, Irving Ives, which pleases all the pro-McCarthy people, Republican as well as Democratic. And Lehman repudiated the son of the Hyde Park mahatma in the preliminary scuffle for the Democratic nomination for governor. So the Democrats have substantial things to be thankful for and the organization Republicans can say that, anyway, they knocked off Junior in the very citadel of the cult.

In Connecticut, the defeat of John Lodge, the ostensible Republican governor, by Abe Ribicoff, a Democratic congressman, rejoiced Vivien Kellems, who at last reports had polled about 900 votes for governor in her vendetta against Clare Luce and her consort, Henry, the king-maker.

Vivien had little to do with this actual campaign. But fairness compels the admission that she had spent years screaming over local radios and had drenched the state with knowledge of a mean, furtive system which permitted Park avenue Yankees to control the Republican machine. Miss Kellems strives to seem above personal rancor with Clare but, gents, this has been a grudge fight for years and a classic hair-pulling on a refined, ladylike plan.

Henry Luce keeps a de luxe hideout just a drive and a pitch over the New York-Connecticut line and he has been double-gaited in his politics. But in this case, he had to be triple-gaited to win because Ribicoff pointedly rejected all connection with Luce's two Democratic bosses, Chester Bowles and Bill Benton.

Ribicoff ran as his own man and did not have to take any onus on the McCarthy issue because McCarthy is not a Democrat.

Lodge, on the other hand, and Luce, too, of course, antagonized McCarthy's friends, who are numerous in Connecticut. In fact, it was McCarthy who personally dragged the Republican Bill Purtell over the line a victor for his Senate seat two years ago by appearances in Bridgeport and Danbury where "Irish" Democrats were boiling mad and defected, as the term goes, in large numbers. Purtell has shown ingratitude since then and he may get his needing from the same "Irish" if and when he runs again.

So Luce's Republican candidate was knocked in the creek

UNREACHED YOUTH

On the fringes of society, on the outskirts of any social group, loiters the unwanted and neglected child. The social service worker calls such children the unreached youth. The child may be a lonely straggler, or one of a gang of anti-social beings. He is an emotionally deprived child. He is either a delinquent, or is on his way to delinquency. These children have known no affection, no acceptance, no approval. They are not wanted, they are not included anywhere.

Social service workers have pondered long over these problem children. They will not come to settlement houses for fear of being rebuffed. With all the fine facilities and well trained staffs many settlement houses now maintain, workers are aware they are not reaching a large and an important segment of youth. These children who have been isolated from normal society are the ones who form gangs, wind up in court on charges ranging from possession of narcotics to murder.

A brave program was initiated in Los Angeles and is now being carried on in many of our major cities. Social service workers are working singly among these gangs. The job is to become acquainted with the children, gain their confidence and be included in their gang.

The worker is tested again and again by the children, but once he has proved himself to be their friend, he can begin to channel their interests into wholesome activities. The work is slow, tedious, and arduous. The progress is not steady, but encouraging results have been reported.

Many children have been guided into constructive work and play groups. Many more roam untouched. This is not an overnight job. The worker is faced with hostility, suspicion, cruelty and anger. He must guide and re-shape the warped worlds within which each of these children lives. He must bridge the years of neglect and dislike these children have known with the warmth of his own friendship.

The basis of this project turns on the one fragile thing these children need and the worker can offer. Friendship.

Strap hanging on streetcars can be fun, an Italian inventor believes. His strap which plays a tune when grasped will turn rush-hour miseries into music. Perhaps a little of the same treatment around the house would help, too, when the day's routine gets drab.

EX-CANDIDATES

Whatever else one can say about the elections, they are not good clean fun for candidates. Ask the wife of a candidate, win or lose. Ask the husband of a wife-candidate. Ask a bachelor-candidate's dog.

The place no candidate stayed long was home. When he did he was on the phone. When he wasn't home his wife was on the phone saying he was out at a meeting. This was close enough. If he wasn't holding a meeting, he was organizing one or trying to find one. Sometimes he walked the streets talking to anybody, saying nothing, being pleasant.

Even the simplest words like yes and no lost meaning for him. When he said yes, he meant maybe; when he said no, he meant maybe; he never said maybe, even when taxed, because his true position might offend somebody. No matter what he said he tried to appear sincere and agreeable.

Then came the inevitable Tuesday.

The winner will go to Washington on a five-figure salary where several hundred thousand people know exactly how to take it away. If he's a new hand he's going to save the country until he learns better. If he's an old hand, he knows better. In any case he's a perpetual candidate.

The loser, only yesterday on the road to statesmanship and service to his country, goes home. If his neglected wife still likes him, if for all the doubletalk he still has friends, if his business doesn't fail, he'll make out.

It's not good clean fun, any way it's looked at. But without them both, cheerful losers and suddenly-sobered winners, American democracy could not function.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THERE WAS NO TREND

As the election figures are studied, no trend is found, no unmistakable public response to any great party pronouncements or a public challenge to party officials. It is impossible to say that the election was pro- or anti-Eisenhower. The narrow margins are convincing that the Republicans might have managed to win hands down had they not, with characteristic ineptitude, embroiled themselves in intra-party conflicts in several states. On that, of course, there will be wide disagreement both as to cause and effect and one can let the subject pass without too much concern at this time.

The question is of the future. President Eisenhower continues to speak of the moderate approach to public problems which describes inadequately what that approach is. Who desires an immoderate approach and what is the nature of it? Until we know the extremities, it is impossible ever to know where the middle is. In Roosevelt's time, the phrase used to be "left of center," with the center undefined. Perhaps the reason for this queer election is that no one can truly state what anyone believes to be the truth.

During the campaign, when it was generally held that the Democrats, supported by organized labor, would win an enormous victory, it was often suggested that President Eisenhower would declare himself as a one-term President, that he would not run in 1956. No authority was ever cited for such a statement, but it was, from a political standpoint, a confusing one, because if it becomes generally believed, it can increase the conflicts within the Republican Party by stimulating too many ambitions. It is true that President Eisenhower has made no public pronouncement on the subject.

It is customary in the United States for a President to run for two terms, even if he is not always elected to the second term. President Eisenhower is entitled to a second chance in 1956 and it ought to be understood that he will take it. If that is now iterated, the Republican aspirants will have to step back to await their opportunity. No one in the Republican Party comes out of this election so greatly confirmed by the American people as to be an outstanding contestant for President Eisenhower's post. There still is no successor in party leadership to Senator Robert A. Taft.

In the Democratic Party, no one has created for himself so great a reputation as to be outstanding. While Adlai Stevenson assumed active leadership in the campaign, making speeches almost daily all over the country, the result of the election is not sufficient to establish that his participation in the campaign made much difference. No other Democratic personality emerged as an astonishing figure, except J. Strom Thurmond, whose write-in victory was surprising to the country, but which undoubtedly was the result of special local conditions in South Carolina with which other parts of the country are not familiar. Averell Harriman, whom friends before Election Day were grooming for the Presidential nomination, received too narrow a majority to be regarded as significant from a national standpoint. He may now even have difficulty in controlling the New York delegation to the next Democratic Convention.

The elimination of Thomas E. Dewey as a political leader in New York cannot be ignored. Three times elected as Governor, twice a candidate for President, organizer of the nomination of Dwight Eisenhower at the 1952 Republican Convention, Dewey could not carry his chosen successor, Irving Ives, to victory. The narrowness of the Harriman vote indicates that Ives could have won were there not a protest refusal to vote in the election by enough Republicans to make a difference. The defeat of Ives makes Jacob Javits, the Attorney General, the leader of his party in the State. Javits is closely connected with the Liberal Party and therefore he is likely to continue to be opposed by conservative Republicans.

In the New York situation, where men do unfortunately vote along religious and racial lines, in recent elections a tendency has appeared to substitute an Italian Catholic for an Irish Catholic in both parties. An analysis of election districts would indicate that the Irish Catholic Democrats have reasserted their strength by rejecting Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., for Attorney General. He lost in strictly Democratic districts to Jacob Javits, a Republican with Liberal Party leanings, who is a Jew. This unusual result was anticipated by nobody.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

THE JAUNDICED PATIENT

When a patient becomes jaundiced, the first thought is that the liver has been obstructed in some way and this must be cleared by some method or methods if necessary. Dr. Franklin M. Hanger, Professor of Medicine at Columbia University, states that approximately one-third of all jaundiced patients present a baffling diagnostic problem despite countless efforts to classify and catalogue the underlying causes of hyperbilirubinemia (jaundice) and despite the many ingenious procedures employed to differentiate icterus (yellow coloring) due to biliary obstruction from that caused by the liver itself.

When no complications are present, irrespective of cause, obstructive jaundice is usually gradual in onset, with dark urine and light-colored stools. The liver is often somewhat enlarged and tender and there is often itching of the skin which is considered important as an aid to diagnosis. Laboratory tests show increased amounts of bilirubin (the orange-red pigments of bile) in the blood.

Once the presence of obstructive jaundice is established, the physician is confronted with the practical problems of trying to find the cause of the obstruction and deciding whether operation is advisable because there may be many nonsurgical conditions present, such as acute or chronic cholangiolitis (inflammation of the bile ducts), blockade of the bile ducts and inflammation of the pancreas.

It is because there are these other nonsurgical causes of jaundice which may be present that Dr. Hanger suggests a period of observation for several weeks to study the condition unless there are definite symptoms such as a tense, distended gall bladder or the development of a mass in the upper abdomen which would indicate the need for operation to explore the gall bladder.

During the period of observation, the jaundiced patient should be kept on bed rest so that any change, no matter how small, in the laboratory findings will be significant. Where jaundice persists, these patients usually require an exploratory operation. Other conditions causing jaundice may be due to a disorder of the liver itself, such as an infection, poisons (excessive alcoholism), air hunger, deficiency in the diet, and run-down conditions of the whole system. Once the cause of the jaundice has been found, there should be no delay in operation, if operation is considered necessary, except in those cases which have an obviously hopeless outlook.

"Of Course It'll Be a Posthumous Award, Comrade"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — As this column is written on the day after elections, the Senate race was still so close it could fall either way. The pattern indicated that Senate contests were being decided more on personalities than issues, with many sound voters' decisions. With Senate Republican ranks divided as they were in the last Congress, the Democrats would appear to have an advantage of voting strength even though the GOP organizes and controls the committees.

The result in the House is in keeping with the historical record that the party in power loses strength in a mid-term election. The Republicans threw everything they had into the fight to overcome their handicap. This included more television and radio time, all the influence which an administration in power commands over promises of contracts and jobs, more campaign money, more manpower and somewhat more mud. But they weren't enough to overcome the trend.

POLITICIANS NO MORE than get one election out of the road than they have to start thinking about the next one.

In the light of the 1954 election results a few facts about 1956 stand out clearer than they did before.

The prospect of President Eisenhower being a candidate to succeed himself is now definitely thinned. It has been fairly evident for some time that he is not anxious to have a second term. The Republicans have no other candidate of the President's stature.

The campaign waged by Vice President Richard M. Nixon this year has raised some doubt as to his effectiveness. While he showed tremendous energy and enthusiasm, his tactics did not bring the desired results.

By contrast, Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson looks better than he did in 1952. If anything offset President Eisenhower's final campaign drive and appeals, it was the two windup speeches of ex-Governor Stevensen. He earned his place as the recognized spokesman for his party, closing ranks that were broken at Chicago.

Democrats, however, are traditionally a more united party when in the minority than when in majority control. The one big uncertainty on their horizon now is whether the Texas Democratic congressional leaders—Speaker Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon Johnson—will challenge Stevenson's leadership in charting a program for the party in the next two years.

THIS COULD BE AN IMPORTANT matter almost immediately in the selection of a new Democratic National Committee chairman to succeed the resigning Steve Mitchell.

If the Democratic forces in the new Congress can hold together in the next two years as they have held in this year's campaign, their party's prospects cannot be minimized.

But with power comes responsibility. Strategically, the Democrats may be in a less favorable position in control of the House at least, than they would be if the Republicans retained control.

Completely out of power, the Democrats would be free to criticize whatever they didn't like about the Eisenhower program, building up issues as they did in the last session. In control of congressional committees in even only one house of Congress, the Democrats must share burdens of office and take part of the blame for whatever happens.

Farm policy, defense spending, public works and tax reduction offer the best examples of what is at stake. All will be major issues in 1956.

IF THE DEMOCRATS set out to reverse the 1954 farm bill by moving back to rigid 90 per cent price supports, the obvious effect will be higher government spending to buy bigger surpluses.

Democrats in the last Congress and in the campaign criticized Republican reduction of national defense funds and curtailed appropriations for government power and reclamation projects. Similarly, the Democrats proposed more direct aid to reduce unemployment through public works.

If now the Democrats are able to force through larger government spending programs and at the same time put over a tax cut for lower income brackets, the government's fiscal position is in for another beating. It will mean only further unbalancing of the budget and a threat of more inflation.

This is the biggest pitfall which the now cocky Democrats have to hurdle in the two years ahead.

Misstatements May Bring Failure of Two Points in McCarthy Censure Paper

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 8 — Two glaring misstatements of fact—errors that have astonished parliamentarians of long experience on Capitol Hill—have been found in the Watkins committee report which may mean the collapse of two of the three points in the censure resolution proposed against Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin.

These misstatements of the law and the precedents will prove embarrassing to Senators Lehman of New York, Douglas of Illinois, Humphrey of Minnesota, and a number of other senators on the so-called "Liberal" side who will be abondoning their convictions and reversing themselves if they accept the doctrine laid down in the Watkins report that the Senate is a "continuing body."

The point at issue concerns the flat statement made in the Watkins report that, because the Senate is a "continuing body," Senator McCarthy can be punished for something that happened during his prior term of Congress. The exact opposite—that the Senate is not a "continuing body"—was vigorously contended by a large number of so-called "Liberals" in the Senate just 22 months ago.

The loose language of the Watkins committee report which is disputed by the parliamentarians is as follows:

"Senate rule XXXII provides that the legislative business of the Senate shall be continued from session to session, and that the legislative business which remains undetermined at the close of the next preceding session of that Congress shall be resumed as if no adjournment had taken place. This rule makes it clear that all legislative business continues from session to session."

The report then immediately draws this conclusion: "The Senate has the power to censure a senator for conduct occurring during a prior term."

But the Watkins committee report is factually wrong, because the Senate rules do not provide for any such continuity in the status of legislation. When this question was last debated on January 6, 1953 in connection with an effort to remove the ban on changes in the cloture rules, Senator Lehman of New York, Democrat, who has recently been one of the archfoes of Senator McCarthy, said:

"Obviously, the continuance in office of 64 senators does not mean that the Senate, as an organized body, continues beyond the expiration of the Congress of which the Senate is an integral part. That would be an impossible contradiction.

"When the Congress dies, the Senate, as an organized body, dies, too. It is revived, as the House is, on the third day of January when the new Congress begins its term. The fact that 64 senators remain in office provides a bridge of personal continuity. But that continuity has no relationship to the fact that at the end of the term of the whole Congress the whole Congress is finished, and that includes the rules of the Senate."

Senator Lehman filed a brief prepared under the auspices of the 1952 leadership conference on civil rights, which included the American Civil Liberties Union, the Americans for Democratic Action, and many labor unions and religious and veterans' organizations. This made an even stronger legal case against the concept that the Senate is a "continuing body." After pointing out that legislative business may be carried over from session to session only of the same Congress, the brief says:

"It is clear from the rule (XXXII) that legislative business lapses at the end of each Congress so that committee hearings, committee reports, Senate debate and even progress through the Senate calendar are all for naught if the legislative business has not been completed by that time."

Senator Douglas of Illinois, Democrat, said in the same debate:

"Despite the hold-over of two thirds of its members in each new Congress, it is conceded by everyone that the Senate is not a continuing body for the consideration of legislation, executive appointments, treaties, officers or committees. There is no basis for a different conclusion on the matter of rules."

Even the brief submitted at that time by the Republican Policy Committee sponsored by the late Senator Taft on the other side of the debate contained the following concession:

"No direct precedent has been found in the form of a Senate ruling either on the question (1) whether the Senate is a continuing body, or (2) whether its rules are continuing."

While the Senate failed by its subsequent vote to permit the previous rules to be discarded in favor of an amendment to restrict debate, the vote was taken on that issue directly rather than on whether the Senate was a "continuing body."

The other grave error in the Watkins Committee report is a misleading statement on the matter of precedents. The committee's language was as follows:

"A member may be censured even after he has resigned. Precedents in both the Senate and House for expulsion or censure for conduct occurring during a preceding Congress may be found in 'Hind's Precedents'."

But a careful examination of the same source—"Hind's Precedents"—shows that there is not a single case of such conduct occurring in a prior term which had become known to Congress in such prior term. In the McCarthy case, on two of the three points charged against him the information was available before his old term expired.

Only the third count—the Zwicker case — occurred during the same term in which the action for censure was brought. "Hind's Precedents" also reveals that such censure as occurred after a member resigned was in connection with proceedings initiated at the same term and before the resignation occurred, or else on court convictions which became final during a subsequent term.

There is no parallel to the McCarthy case cited in "Hind's Precedents," but the Watkins report gives the erroneous impression that there have been such precedents on which censure has been voted. Actually, the committee for some strange reason omitted mention of those precedents in which both the Senate and the House deliberately refused to vote censure for conduct disclosed during the previous term of a member. The Watkins Committee apparently accepted the draft written by counsel unfamiliar with the legal precedents involved. Yet the Senate is expected to act impartially on the basis of such a defective document. It was a hastily done job.

Where does this leave us, then?

Well, the Democrats beat Dewey's man, Irving Ives, which pleases all the pro-McCarthy people, Republican as well as Democratic. And Lehman repudiated the son of the Hyde Park mahatma in the preliminary scuffle for the Democratic nomination for governor. So the Democrats have substantial things to be thankful for and the organization Republicans can say that, anyway, they knocked off Junior in the very citadel of the cult.

In Connecticut, the defeat of John Lodge, the ostensible Republican governor, by Abe Ribicoff, a Democratic congressman, rejoiced Vivien Kellems, who at last reports had polled about 900 votes for governor in her vendetta against Clare Luce and her consort, Henry, the king-maker.

Vivien had little to do with this actual campaign. But fairness compels the admission that she had spent years screaming over local radios and had drenched the state with knowledge of a mean, furtive system which permitted Park avenue Yankees to control the Republican machine. Miss Kellems strives to seem above personal rancor with Clare but, gents, this has been a grudge fight for years and a classic hair-pulling on a refined, ladylike plan.

Henry Luce keeps a de luxe hideout just a drive and a pitch over the New York-Connecticut line and he has been double-gaited in his politics. But in this case, he had to be triple-gaited to win because Ribicoff pointedly rejected all connection with Luce's two Democratic bosses, Chester Bowles and Bill Benton.

Ribicoff ran as his own man and did not have to take any onus on the McCarthy issue because McCarthy is not a Democrat.

Lodge, on the other hand, and Luce, too, of course, antagonized McCarthy's friends, who are numerous in Connecticut. In fact, it was McCarthy who personally dragged the Republican Bill Purtell over the line a victor for his Senate seat two years ago by appearances in Bridgeport and Danbury where "Irish" Democrats were boiling mad and defected, as the term goes, in large numbers. Purtell has shown ingratitude since then and he may get his needing from the same "Irish" if and when he runs again.

So Luce's Republican candidate was knocked in the creek

Do You Remember

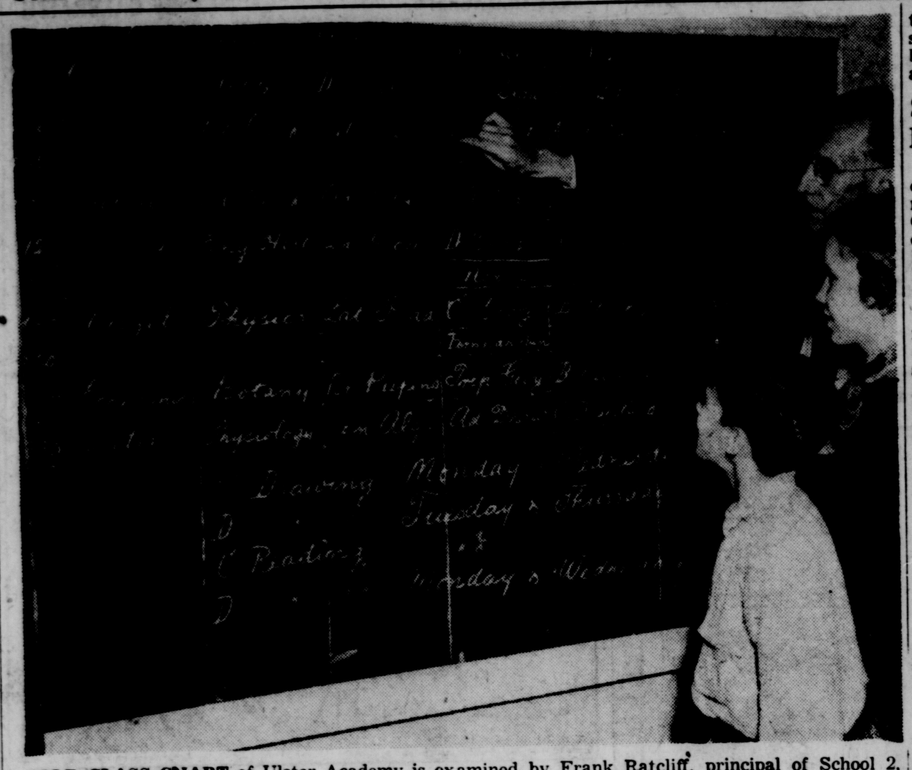
By SOPHIE MILLER

Election time always brings back memories of similar events before radio and TV when the corner of Strand and Broadway was a favorite place for political speeches. Those were the days when a politician had to ad lib. Usually he stood on the balcony and spoke right directly to the people. From time to time he was even heckled and had to answer it. It was sort of rough and tumble affairs, with parades and fires. There was more excitement on the street before and after election as the candidates would ride down the street and sometimes visit all the stores possible. It seems for weeks there would be one speaker after another on the Strand corner or on the Mansion House balcony. Frank Quigley at the time had a hotel around the corner and was the powerful Democratic leader downtown. As a youngster I listened to all the speeches and did not understand exactly why all the excitement surrounded this three weeks spell, of the year. I also remember politics was the topic of conversation wherever one went in the stores and sometimes even calm people would lose their temper about it.

Going back to the first election in Kingston of 1872 according to Captain Andrew's book of The Story of Kingston, I see the Hon. James G. Lindsley was elected by a majority of 700 in a contest where 3271 votes were cast. Of course, that was before women had the vote. According to Captain Hickey, during the years of 1872 and 1873 there was a great deal of unemployment in our new city of Kingston and Mayor Lindsley, with the advice of the Common Council, decided to build what was known as the Poor House. It put carpenters, masons, painters, mechanics and unskilled laborers to work at least for a good cause. Food and clothing, in addition to 50 cents a day, was paid to all who wished to work at this construction. Of course, one must remember it was a brand new community and they had to take it very easy on spending the people's money. I take it, it is the same building, so well constructed then, that it is now being converted into a hospital for the chronically ill.

Also before the welfare organization was set up as it is today, there was a county branch of the State Child Welfare Board made up of a group of volunteer workers, principally men appointed by the judge of the County Court who supervised the expenditure of money provided by the state for widows and orphans. As time went on various changes were made to meet the needs of those who had to go on relief because of old age, neglect, abandonment, accidents, physical incapacity, death of the breadwinner, unemployment, sickness or other unfortunate situations.

From time to time I am asked about the women first voting in Kingston. It seems it was back in 1917 that the mayor of Kingston directed that a population census be taken by members of the police department to find out how many women were eligible to vote. The result of the census was made public in January of 1918. Total population at the time was 26,303 in Kingston, with 8,887 women of voting age and 7,335 men eligible to vote. From then on of course the women voted at every election.



OLD CLASS CHART of Ulster Academy is examined by Frank Ratcliff, principal of School 2, who explains it to Kerry Zang and Donna Kilquist. (Freeman photo)

Original Ulster Academy Program Preserved at No. 2

The Freeman in cooperation with the local school officials will publish a series of pictures of school activities this week, which has been designated as "American Education Week." The principals and teachers invite parents to visit the schools this week, the theme for which is "Know Your Schools."

Several years ago, when blackboards were being replaced in School 2 it was discovered that there was another blackboard underneath the one that was being removed and that an original program from Ulster Academy was still on this board.

It was decided at the time to preserve the old program and it was covered with glass. Some time after this program was originally written, Ulster Academy became School 2 as it is known today in Kingston.

An examination of the program reveals some interesting comparisons with the high school programs of today.

THE OLD ONE was a strictly classical program with little, if any choice, left to the student and certainly little attempt was made to meet individual needs other than college entrance.

Xenophone, Virgil, Greek and English History have departed from the requirements for high school graduation while other subjects are still taught today but in most cases as electives, except for English and reading.

It should be remembered that at the time this program was written, most of the students were those who were going on to college and therefore took the trouble and spent the time to go to high school (or the Academy) while today most of the youth of the country attend high school, a least for a time.

As a result, the needs have changed and the school curriculm has changed with the times.

Men Teachers Increasing

The percentage of men teachers in U. S. elementary and secondary schools has been increasing—15.2 per cent in 1947 and 22.8 per cent in 1951.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Organized labor is hollering because prices received by farmers have gone down, but prices paid at the grocery stay up. They pretend to think that this is a business plot which demands to be corrected by the election of the right kind of Congressmen to "pass a law."

Mr. Hutton

The answer is simple. The responsible party is organized labor!

The farmer gets 3 cents for the wheat in a pound loaf of bread for which the workingman's wife pays around 17 cents. In the "spread" of 14 cents, there may be a profit of as much as 2 cents.

The rest is wages and taxes. That is the wedge between the farmer and the wage earner's wife. Every wage is a cost that becomes price.

The cost of transporting the wheat to the mill, the flour to the baker, and the bread to the store and kitchen is chiefly wages — including that of the clerks and delivery boys.

Sorting, grinding, milling, baking, packaging are all done by labor, using machines made and serviced by labor. Wages, at increasing rates per hour, are being paid all up and down the line. Even taxes paid by everyone in the process come out as wages to mailmen, school teachers and bureaucrats.

The howlers over prices today are like the guy who hits his thumb with a hammer and blames it on the political party he intends to vote against.

No Action Taken On Dump Problem

Saugerties, Nov. 6—In an effort to find a solution to the serious condition prevailing at the village dump, members of the Village Board of Trustees attended the meeting of the Saugerties Town Board Thursday night in the Town Hall.

Mayor George P. Holmes attended with Roy Helsmoortel, David S. Cunningham and Louis P. Francello, local attorney.

According to village officials some of the problems of the dump located off Ulster avenue are due to the additional load of town residents who are also said to be using the facility.

The matter was discussed with arguments for both sides presented. A consensus of those present agreed that the matter called for further study before a decision could be reached.

Town Supervisor Peter Williams said that he could not ask the Town Board to make a decision until Town Superintendent of Highways Henry Luhrs was able to inspect the dump for a possible solution. Luhrs was ill at his home and could not be present at the meeting.

An agreement was reached that further study was necessary and the two governing bodies would meet again in about two weeks.

Scouters Witness Plaque Presentation

Saugerties, Nov. 6—Scouters of the Saugerties District witnessed the re-presentation of Cub Pack 130 Cubbing Award of the Month to Scoutmaster Kenneth Maclary at the regular meeting Thursday night at the West Camp Parish Hall.

The initial presentation was made to Scoutmaster Maclary and his scouts of Troop 32, sponsored by Atonement Lutheran Church at the regular monthly pack meeting of the cub scouts of Pack 130 last Tuesday.

District Chairman John J. Wood, Sr., said that it would only be fitting that the district meeting would be opened with a re-enactment of the ceremony in which Maclary was presented with a wooden plaque containing his name and the names of the boys involved. The names were etched in the wood by wood burning. The scroll containing a eulogy was read this time by Chairman Wood.

Chairman Wood congratulated Scoutmaster Maclary for his excellent example in living the scouting law.

It was reported in the scouter's roundtable that plans were made for the District Winter Camporee which is to be held on the weekend of Dec. 10-12 at Woodland Valley Camp site. The program will include skiing, snowshoeing, and hiking.

Preliminary programs were also discussed for presentation during National Boy Scout Week in February.

Fish, as well as ships, use the Suez Canal, traveling back and forth between the Red Sea and the eastern Mediterranean.

BANK BARGINS

Bank mergers in New York city throw the spotlight on the values exchanging hands. In every consolidation or merger in recent years, the public has been too conservative in its evaluation of shares.

Let me illustrate. When Manufacturers Trust took over Brooklyn Trust, the latter's shares brought the equivalent of $233 a share—$183 in cash and a share of Manufacturers which, at the time of the merger, was selling at around $50 a share. Before this was planned, the Brooklyn Trust shares went begging at $125 each.

The Bankers Trust Company of New York paid $75.58 in cash for each share of Commercial National Bank and Trust Company. The public didn't want them at $50.

The Continental Bank and Trust shares were on the bargain counter at $12 each before the Chemical Bank and Trust Company brought its commercial banking business. In the liquidation of the Continental and in the sale of assets, the stockholders will get twice $12 or more.

And just now the Corn Exchange Bank and Trust Company consolidation with the Chemical Bank has been consummated. Early this year Corn Exchange shares were available at $60 each. Their value, based on public statements, was $68. Yet, in the final settlement, the Corn Exchange holders received over $90 a share—a 50 per cent appreciation this year in a conservative stock.

Why were all of these stocks marked up? Because the values were there. Real estate was carried in the balance sheets far below its true worth. Other earning assets were marked way down.

Sound money shares of banks and trust companies belong in every well-diversified portfolio. And without exception, the shares of giant billion dollar New York city institutions fail to reveal their value at today's prices.

Readers should be reminded that federal bank legislation in recent years has thrown at least two favorable things at prospective bank and trust stockholders: (1) shares are no longer assessable and (2) these institutions pay no interest whatever on demand deposits.

Thus, the bank for which I worked and in which I have been a stockholder for many years, has deposits of over $2,500,000,000. And the use of the bulk of this (invested in government securities and in loans and discounts) costs nothing.

Other New York city bank mergers are on tap. If one knew where the lightning was going to strike next, the key to capital gains would be found. But, in the meantime, conservative investors looking for sound values at attractive prices need look only at the equities of the big institutions in the financial center of the world. Why shouldn't a small investor in Spokane or Manila or Bonn or Tokyo or Calcutta own shares of a billion dollar New York city institution? He should.

THE FORUM (Q) "Where can I get the names of these institutions?" (A) Ask your broker or banker to give you the names of the New York city financial institutions that are members of the New York Clearing House.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

Fairy Tales Get a Boost for Magical Age of Childhood

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Two days after the Christmas I was eight years old, a lovely thing happened to me—I found a still-unopened gift. It was a book, and reading it, I came upon one of those sentences that sinks unforgettable into the heart of childhood: "In fact, the fairies had turned Tom into a water baby."

The book, which was "Water Babies," of course, told me this as casually as I had been told that Alice walked through the Looking Glass, and that Pinocchio's wooden fingers snatched the wig off old Geppetto.

Its author, like the writers of all great children's books, knew that Nature suspends her laws for them as she does for saints.

So when I come upon a "juvenile" book that treats miracles as commonplace, I rejoice for childhood. Such a book is the just-published "Beyond the Pawpaw Trees" by a young man named Palmer Brown. It is a lovely book. And I envy the child who will climb up on Anna Lavinia's desert mirage to learn the secret of its musical fountain.

Real fairy tales are rare in this world of ours, so anxious to face "reality." We have, I think, some ideas that they are psychologically unwholesome for children. We are scared to encourage wonder in what we believe does not exist—and thus prefer to give them books on the wonders of Boulder Dam and the auto industry.

As a consequence of this refusal to feed children's imagination with imagination, it is starved in many American youngsters.

This, if I may say so, seems psychologically unwholesome. For Susan's imagination, as part of her nature, cannot be denied without making trouble. If it is starved in childhood, it can later become ravenous.

Thus, in the very country that frowns on real fairy tales for youngsters, we have an adolescent population that adores the false kind. Our teen-agers can't gobble up enough of the bad fairy tales told them by second-rate movies, juke boxes and love pulp magazines.

So, I'm for magic in the magical age of childhood.

I'm for encouraging that magical age to seek its wonders in gardens of talking flowers, in the Brownie who lives with the mole in the garden, in the empty chrysalis swaying from the bush at the kitchen window, or in the wondrous adventures little Anna found out past the grove of Pawpaws.

Conrad Reaches Paris Non-Stop

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP)—San Francisco song writer Max Conrad completed his first nonstop flight across the Atlantic yesterday, landing his light two-engine Piper Apache safely near Paris 22 hours and 23 minutes after taking off from New York's Idlewild airport.

It was the 49-year-old flier's fifth solo transatlantic flight. He made the crossing to deliver the plane to a French purchaser and to arouse interest among young people in flying.

Conrad said he wasn't tired by the flight, just needed "to relax a bit." He described his flight as uneventful, with the weather generally good, but added he "ran into a belt of bad weather over the North Atlantic and had to go through some snow and ice."

The flier said he would return to the United States by ship.

H. F. Landon Dies

Watertown, Nov. 8 (AP)—Funeral services will be conducted here Tuesday for Harry F. Landon, managing editor of the Watertown Times. Landon, 62, a member of the Times staff for 32 years, about 25 of them as managing editor, died Saturday night at his home. He had been stricken ill earlier while at work in the newspaper office. Death was attributed to a ruptured artery in the chest.

Since World War 2, an average of 190,000 immigrants a year have come to the United States.

John Philipso, U. S. A.

By FRANK TRIPP

"Life was joy when I was a boy, in days of long ago; when eye and ear could see and hear the things that were to know. But the good old earth, once gladdened with mirth and pleasures high and grand, seems stale and tame since I became too big to follow the band."

This November 6th was the 100th anniversary of the birth of America's greatest band man—John Philip Sousa. As an old brass band press agent I intend to give attention to the occasion.

The March King and his first trombone, Arthur Pryor, were among my prized acquaintances in the day when Sousa reigned; when a trumpet was a cornet and there were no saxophones.

Oh, that blessed day when a band was a band, an orchestra was an orchestra; distinguished by whether brass and drums, or strings and reeds predominated. Today three sleepy guys on a rickety rostrum, slaying an accordion, strumming a bass fiddle and tickling a drum with a fly swatter, get billed as a "band."

IN THE other days Sousa's Band and Victor Herbert's Orchestra toured the country annually. Arthur Pryor later had a swell band too, as did his son, Arthur Jr., after him. And there was Pat Conway's Band, another national institution, but the peer of them all from metropolis to crossroads was John Philip Sousa.

Not only as a band man, but also as a composer and author. His marches became immortal, notably "Stars and Stripes Forever," "King Cotton," Liberty ell" and "Semper Fidelis." His band was intact for 40 years, toured the world several times, and gave more than 10,000 concerts.

He composed the comic operas "El Capitan" and "The Bride Elect" and wrote several books. He was a youthful violinist in Offenbach's Orchestra and at Ford's Opera House, Washington, where Lincoln was assassinated.

ONE OF THE recompenses for growing old is having known such men as Sousa, Herbert and Conway.

John Philip got an undeserved reputation for being high-hat, which he wasn't. Like every genius he had idiosyncrasies. One of them was speaking to audiences that he didn't rate important. I heard him coin a wisecrack that has grown trite from reputation. It was a hot day at a Rotary dinner that was packed because he was to speak.

The food was poor and the chairman was worse; took most of Sousa's time for his introduction. Finally on his feet, the speaker of the occasion spoke just 22 words. He said, "If you lured me here under the impression that I'm an after dinner speaker, you're out of luck. I've had no dinner"—and sat down.

AS A KID I read a weird explanation of how John Philip Sousa got his name. It was printed widely and read like this:

"Sousa's real name is John Philipso. When he came to this country as an immigrant he consigned his baggage to 'John Philipso, U.S.A.' An incompetent ship's clerk recorded Mr. Philipso as 'John Philip Sousa.' The famed musician was intrigued by the name thus given him and adopted it as his own."

Interesting and seemingly plausible, except that John Philip Sousa was born an American citizen in Washington, D. C., on November 6, 1854; taught music at 15, was a conductor at 17, band leader in the U. S. Marine Corps from 1880 to 1882, when he organized Sousa's Band, which he still headed at his death in Reading, Pa., in 1932.

ETIQUETTE FOR MOTHERS

A girl writes: "I am fourteen years old and a junior in high school. Whenever I receive a letter, my mother feels she should open it and read it. It isn't that I am trying to hide anything from her but I feel I'm old enough for private mail. What is your opinion?"

I agree with you. A mother has absolutely no right to open her children's mail even that of very little ones!

Unhappy Marriage

Dear Mrs. Post: My son has been working and living in a distant city for the past five years. Recently he met and married a young woman from there. They were married quietly and after the wedding, announcements were sent out. A month after the wedding my daughter-in-law walked out on my son and has gone to another part of the country. At the present time this is known by only the immediate families. As many of our relatives and friends did not know my son's address, they sent their wedding presents here to our house. These presents number about fifty and none of them has been acknowledged as yet. Will you please tell me what should be done about them. Should they be sent to my son, or to the bride so that they may be acknowledged, or just what does one do in a situation of this kind?

Answer: Wait a little while to see if the break is final and if it is, return the gifts to the givers; and if not, you would send the presents to the reunited couple.

'My Husband'

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct for a wife to persist in referring to her husband as "my husband" to no matter whom she may be speaking? I have a friend who constantly says, "my husband," when speaking to many of us who have known him for years and it makes most of us feel like hired help to have it continued. Is it unreasonable of us to be annoyed over this trifle?

Answer: I think you are quite right to be annoyed. You only say "My husband" to total strangers who don't know who "Jim" is.

ETIQUETTE FOR MOTHERS

A girl writes: "I am fourteen years old and a junior in high school. Whenever I receive a letter, my mother feels she should open it and read it. It isn't that I am trying to hide anything from her but I feel I'm old enough for private mail. What is your opinion?"

I agree with you. A mother has absolutely no right to open her children's mail even that of very little ones!

Unhappy Marriage

Dear Mrs. Post: My son has been working and living in a distant city for the past five years. Recently he met and married a young woman from there. They were married quietly and after the wedding, announcements were sent out. A month after the wedding my daughter-in-law walked out on my son and has gone to another part of the country. At the present time this is known by only the immediate families. As many of our relatives and friends did not know my son's address, they sent their wedding presents here to our house. These presents number about fifty and none of them has been acknowledged as yet. Will you please tell me what should be done about them. Should they be sent to my son, or to the bride so that they may be acknowledged, or just what does one do in a situation of this kind?

Answer: Wait a little while to see if the break is final and if it is, return the gifts to the givers; and if not, you would send the presents to the reunited couple.

'My Husband'

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct for a wife to persist in referring to her husband as "my husband" to no matter whom she may be speaking? I have a friend who constantly says, "my husband," when speaking to many of us who have known him for years and it makes most of us feel like hired help to have it continued. Is it unreasonable of us to be annoyed over this trifle?

Answer: I think you are quite right to be annoyed. You only say "My husband" to total strangers who don't know who "Jim" is.

Lawrence's Early Surge Engulfs Kingston, 39-6

Islanders Lead 19-0 at Quarter

A hard running, slick passing Lawrence High School football team overpowered Kingston High, 39 to 6, Saturday at the island stadium.

Two long scoring plays early in the first period broke the game wide open. The Larries led 33-0 at halftime.

Handicapped by injuries to its two top linebackers — Gene Massa and Neal Keyser — the Maroon nevertheless rallied to battle the big island powerhouse to a 6-6 standstill in the second half.

Trailing 39-0, the Maroons picked up their lone touchdown late in the game when the injured Massa bolted 50 yards off tackle.

MASSA SUFFERED a kick in the mouth and Keyser had a shoe planted on his face. Ronnie Ashdown also was roughed up and was to be examined today for a possible broken nose.

The defeat was the worst for Kingston since the 39-0 setback by Newburgh in the 1952 finale. It knocked the Maroons below the .500 mark with 2 wins, 3 losses and a tie.

Coach Bill Burke, happy that his team came out of the bruising fracas in pretty good shape, said that Lawrence was easily "the best blocking and running team we have met this year."

TOM CAPPABIANCO, hard charging fullback, and Joe Delgais, a halfback, did heavy damage for the Larries. Delgais broke off tackle for a long run early in the game and a long pass from quarterback Alex Stark to Joe Delgais followed shortly after to start the rout.

The lineups:

Kingston		Lawrence
Jackson	LE	Benedetto
Miller	LT	Stocknoff
Ritter	LG	Smith
Blanschan	C	Groom
Saluste	RG	Vota
Woods	RT	Max
Aiello	RE	Cocchetera

Giants, Eagles Tied In Eastern Division

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
The Associated Press

Commissioner Bert Bell couldn't have done a better job if he had waited until today to make up next Sunday's National Football League schedule.

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles are tied for the eastern division lead, each with 5-2 records. They meet Sunday at New York's Polo Grounds.

The champion Detroit Lions lead the second place San Francisco 49ers by a game in the won-lost column. They clash Sunday at Detroit with the Lions seeking to square accounts for the season. The champions' only setback was a 37-31 beating by the 49ers at Frisco. They have won five. The 49ers are 4-2 with one tie.

CHARLEY CONERLY had a good day throwing three touchdown passes to Ken MacAfee, to Kyle Rote and to Bob Topp, a new end from Michigan. The Giants intercepted five passes.

George Ratterman, substituting for 17 minutes while Otto Graham rested a banged up left knee pitched the Cleveland Browns to four quick touchdowns in their 62-3 rout of the Washington Redskins. Ratterman completed 10 of 11 passes for 208 yards in his brief appearance.

Quarterback Norman Van Brocklin threw three touchdown passes and directed three more to lead the Los Angeles Rams to a 42-34 upset of the San Francisco 49ers.

THE CHICAGO BEARS blew a 14-point lead then struck back from behind with a pair of touchdowns in the final minutes of the fourth quarter to beat the Green Bay Packers, 28-23.

The Philadelphia Eagles mixed a consistent running attack with Bobby Thomason's timely aerials to whip the Chicago Cardinals and their one-man gang, Ollie Matson, 30-14.

Matson, apparently injured during the game, became ill in the Cardinals dressing room. The Eagles' team physician said the star had suffered a possible concussion.

Fort Wayne Firstin NBA With 4-0

(By The Associated Press)

The 1954-55 National Basketball Association season still is in its infancy but already there are two big surprises—the Fort Wayne Pistons for their winning ways and the Minneapolis Lakers for inability to hit their championship stride.

The Pistons, who wound up third in the Western Division last year and then lost in the first round of the playoffs, won two games over the weekend and are perched on top with a 4-0 record. No other team can match the perfect performance except the Philadelphia Warriors and they have played only one game. Fort Wayne beat New York 90-83 Saturday and trimmed Rochester 109-84 at home last night.

THE LAKERS also played two games, beating Milwaukee 79-67 at Buffalo Saturday. They returned to Minneapolis for their home debut last night hopeful of continuing on the right track. But they dropped 103-93 overtime decision to the New York Knickerbockers.

George Yardley paced the Pistons against Rochester with 22 points and veteran Max Zaslofsky added 20 more—a total matched by the Royals' Arnie Risen.

The Lakers, again showing how much they miss retired George Mikan, managed to keep pace with the Knicks for four periods but were no match for them in the overtime as Harry Gallatin dropped in 10 of his 25 points. Sweetwater Clifton and Carl Braun tallies 29and 26, respectively for the Knicks while Jim Pollard led the Lakers with 23.

Week's Fistic Review

Cyclone Fullmer Makes Eastern Debut Tonight

By The Associated Press)

Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer, highly touted and unbeaten Utah middleweight prospect, makes his eastern and network television debut tonight (Monday) and he couldn't have picked a better time.

This is a very light week for the beak-busting sport and the 23-year-old Fullmer will get plenty of attention when he takes on muscular Jackie La Bua of New York at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena. (ABC-TV, 10 p. m., EST.)

The West Jordan youngster, an army veteran of the Korean campaign, has won all 24 of his pro fights, 19 by knockouts. Twelve of his kayos have been racked up in the first round.

Fullmer, in the same stable as heavyweight Rex Layne who was once a great prospect himself, comes from a fighting family. His father was a pro boxer and his two younger brothers are competing in the amateurs.

He will get a good test from La Bua, one of the top young middleweights around New York. Jackie has a 23-5 record and holds a victory over France's Jacques Royer.

CUBA'S ORLANDO Zulueta, stung by his recent upset loss to Richie (Kid) Howard which dropped him to fifth in the lightweight rankings, hopes to take it out on Kenny Lane at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight (Dumont-TV, 10 p. m. EST). Zulueta has a 51-20-9 record. Lane, from Muskegon, Mich., has a 22-3 record.

HECTOR CONSTANCE, the Trinidad welterweight who looked good in beating Chico Varona in September, meets rugged Ralph (Tiger) Jones at New York's Madison Square Garden Friday night (NBC radio-TV, 10 p. m., EST).

Cornwall Beats Jayvees, 13 to 7

Cornwall High scored two quick touchdowns early in the fourth quarter to defeat the KHS Jayvees, 13 to 7, Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

It was the second loss in five starts for Coach Bill Hurley's charges.

After a standoff for three preiods, Cornwall broke the scoring ice with a long pass from Smith to Aina from the Kingston 40 to the 7.

Three bucks later, Smith plowed over for the Cornwall TD and then passed to Aina for a 7-0 lead.

KINGSTON FUMBLED the next kickoff and Cornwall recovered on the K 15. Aina, Cornwall's running star for the day, broke off tackle for the second touchdown.

Dick Richards raced 35 yards with an intercepted pass for Kingston's lone tally late in the game. Larry Johnson place kicked the extra point.

The Jayvees played five games this season, defeating Middletown, Tannersville and Newburgh, while losing to Goshen and Cornwall.

The Rocket Still Tough in Clutch

(By The Associated Press)

Old Maurice (Rocket) Richard now well into his 13th season with the Montreal Canadiens, still is one of the fanciest stick handlers in the National Hockey League, and he still can get the important goals.

The Rocket scored a big one last night when the Canadiens stopped the Boston Bruins, 4-3. He skated in from the blue line at 10:52 of the final session to beat Jim Henry and give his club a two-goal margin. It was fortunate he made the goal because the Bruins Milt Schmidt, another old-timer, sent the puck home at 14:01.

So the Canadiens still hold a two-point lead on the defending champion Detroit Red Wings, who eked out a 1-0 victory over the New York Rangers on Ted Lindsay's goal before the game was three minutes old. The goal was the 250th of Lindsay's NHL career.

In the other game of the night, the Toronto Maple Leafs outlasted the Chicago Black Hawks, 2-1, in a rough game. Captain Ted Kennedy and Dave Creighton scored for Toronto while George Sullivan tallied the losers' goal. Referee Bill Chadwick issued 21 penalties.

West Germany Team Continues Sweep at Show

New York, Nov. 8 (AP) — To Americans who think of Germany as a divided country still building itself up after the war, it comes as a surprise to find a West German team sweeping the honors at the National Horse Show.

The German riders are superb and their German-bred horses are overshadowing the American and Mexican mounts among others, winning six international events.

Hans Winkler, the world champion from Warendorf in the province of Westphalia, has been dominating the international competition with his horse, Halla. The 9-year-old brown mare has a harness horse background on one side of the family tree but she has been leaping over the Madison Square Garden hurdles with the greatest of ease.

LIKE THE OTHER members of the German team, Mrs. Helga Kohler and Fritz Thiedemann, Winkler has been riding since he was old enough to walk. Only 28, he won the world title at Madrid this year, his second season of international competition.

Mrs. Kohler's father, a practical doctor at Verden, a city near Hanover, owns the horse she rides most of the time. The horse is an 11-year-old chestnut gelding, named Armalva.

This is the first trip to the United States for all the team, except the 70-year-old non-riding captain, Dr. Gustav Rau.

Like any woman Mrs. Kohler was most interested in shopping when she finished her two-a-day routine at the horse show.

Thiedemann, 36, has been called "best rider in the show" by Gen. Humberto Mariles of the Mexicans who exempted his own team from his rankings. He lives at Elmshorn, near Hamburg, and has a large farm.

Lawrence's Early Surge Engulfs Kingston, 39-6

Islanders Lead 19-0 at Quarter

A hard running, slick passing Lawrence High School football team overpowered Kingston High, 39 to 6, Saturday at the island stadium.

Two long scoring plays early in the first period broke the game wide open. The Larries led 33-0 at halftime.

Handicapped by injuries to its two top linebackers — Gene Massa and Neal Keyser — the Maroon nevertheless rallied to battle the big island powerhouse to a 6-6 standstill in the second half.

Trailing 39-0, the Maroons picked up their lone touchdown late in the game when the injured Massa bolted 50 yards off tackle.

MASSA SUFFERED a kick in the mouth and Keyser had a shoe planted on his face. Ronnie Ashdown also was roughed up and was to be examined today for a possible broken nose.

The defeat was the worst for Kingston since the 39-0 setback by Newburgh in the 1952 finale. It knocked the Maroons below the .500 mark with 2 wins, 3 losses and a tie.

Coach Bill Burke, happy that his team came out of the bruising fracas in pretty good shape, said that Lawrence was easily "the best blocking and running team we have met this year."

TOM CAPPABIANCO, hard charging fullback, and Joe Delgais, a halfback, did heavy damage for the Larries. Delgais broke off tackle for a long run early in the game and a long pass from quarterback Alex Stark to Joe Delgais followed shortly after to start the rout.

The lineups:

Kingston		Lawrence
Jackson	LE	Benedetto
Miller	LT	Stocknoff
Ritter	LG	Smith
Blanschan	C	Groom
Saluste	RG	Vota
Woods	RT	Max
Aiello	RE	Cocchetera
Nash	QB	Stark
Johnson	LH	Adams
Ashdown	RH	Delgais
Massa	FB	Cappabianco

Scoring by periods:

Giants, Eagles Tied In Eastern Division

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
The Associated Press

Commissioner Bert Bell couldn't have done a better job if he had waited until today to make up next Sunday's National Football League schedule.

The New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles are tied for the eastern division lead, each with 5-2 records. They meet Sunday at New York's Polo Grounds.

The champion Detroit Lions lead the second place San Francisco 49ers by a game in the won-lost column. They clash Sunday at Detroit with the Lions seeking to square accounts for the season. The champions' only setback was a 37-31 beating by the 49ers at Frisco. They have won five. The 49ers are 4-2 with one tie.

CHARLEY CONERLY had a good day throwing three touchdown passes to Ken MacAfee, to Kyle Rote and to Bob Topp, a new end from Michigan. The Giants intercepted five passes.

George Ratterman, substituting for 17 minutes while Otto Graham rested a banged up left knee pitched the Cleveland Browns to four quick touchdowns in their 62-3 rout of the Washington Redskins. Ratterman completed 10 of 11 passes for 208 yards in his brief appearance.

Quarterback Norman Van Brocklin threw three touchdown passes and directed three more to lead the Los Angeles Rams to a 42-34 upset of the San Francisco 49ers.

THE CHICAGO BEARS blew a 14-point lead then struck back from behind with a pair of touchdowns in the final minutes of the fourth quarter to beat the Green Bay Packers, 28-23.

The Philadelphia Eagles mixed a consistent running attack with Bobby Thomason's timely aerials to whip the Chicago Cardinals and their one-man gang, Ollie Matson, 30-14.

Matson, apparently injured during the game, became ill in the Cardinals dressing room. The Eagles' team physician said the star had suffered a possible concussion.

Fort Wayne Firstin NBA With 4-0

(By The Associated Press)

The 1954-55 National Basketball Association season still is in its infancy but already there are two big surprises—the Fort Wayne Pistons for their winning ways and the Minneapolis Lakers for inability to hit their championship stride.

The Pistons, who wound up third in the Western Division last year and then lost in the first round of the playoffs, won two games over the weekend and are perched on top with a 4-0 record. No other team can match the perfect performance except the Philadelphia Warriors and they have played only one game. Fort Wayne beat New York 90-83 Saturday and trimmed Rochester 109-84 at home last night.

THE LAKERS also played two games, beating Milwaukee 79-67 at Buffalo Saturday. They returned to Minneapolis for their home debut last night hopeful of continuing on the right track. But they dropped 103-93 overtime decision to the New York Knickerbockers.

George Yardley paced the Pistons against Rochester with 22 points and veteran Max Zaslofsky added 20 more—a total matched by the Royals' Arnie Risen.

The Lakers, again showing how much they miss retired George Mikan, managed to keep pace with the Knicks for four periods but were no match for them in the overtime as Harry Gallatin dropped in 10 of his 25 points. Sweetwater Clifton and Carl Braun tallies 29and 26, respectively for the Knicks while Jim Pollard led the Lakers with 23.

Cyclone Fullmer Makes Eastern Debut Tonight

By The Associated Press)

Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer, highly touted and unbeaten Utah middleweight prospect, makes his eastern and network television debut tonight (Monday) and he couldn't have picked a better time.

This is a very light week for the beak-busting sport and the 23-year-old Fullmer will get plenty of attention when he takes on muscular Jackie La Bua of New York at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena. (ABC-TV, 10 p. m., EST.)

The West Jordan youngster, an army veteran of the Korean campaign, has won all 24 of his pro fights, 19 by knockouts. Twelve of his kayos have been racked up in the first round.

Fullmer, in the same stable as heavyweight Rex Layne who was once a great prospect himself, comes from a fighting family. His father was a pro boxer and his two younger brothers are competing in the amateurs.

He will get a good test from La Bua, one of the top young middleweights around New York. Jackie has a 23-5 record and holds a victory over France's Jacques Royer.

CUBA'S ORLANDO Zulueta, stung by his recent upset loss to Richie (Kid) Howard which dropped him to fifth in the lightweight rankings, hopes to take it out on Kenny Lane at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight (Dumont-TV, 10 p. m. EST). Zulueta has a 51-20-9 record. Lane, from Muskegon, Mich., has a 22-3 record.

HECTOR CONSTANCE, the Trinidad welterweight who looked good in beating Chico Varona in September, meets rugged Ralph (Tiger) Jones at New York's Madison Square Garden Friday night (NBC radio-TV, 10 p. m., EST).

Now rated 10th among the welters, Constance has a 19-6-5 record. Jones, who has faced some of the toughest middleweights in the world, has a 32-10-3 record.

A quick rundown on the current status of five members of the 1953-54 Kingston High School varsity basketball squad:

All-DUSO Dick Bezemer and Bill Haber, the best guard in the loop, are at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. Rollins is a small school (596 registration) but it has basketball ambitions. School officials burned up the long distance wires recruiting area talent last year. Watch it grow in the collegiate basketball world.

Long John Godwin is enrolled at New Paltz. Bob Bondar figures to nail down a varsity berth at Oneonta Teachers. Bucky Miller is doing PG work at KHS.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Worcester Tech, undefeated with Roger Billings at quarterback, outscored the opposition 137 to 13 in its first five games. They whipped Brooklyn College 63-0, Massachusetts Maritime, 35-7, Wesleyan 9-0, Coast Guard 6-0 and RPI, 26-6. Don Dahowski, All-DUSO end at Poughkeepsie and a top basketball player, is playing at the wings for Ed Danowski's Fordham Frosh. . . . Staff work is the key to Jordan Olivar's success. At Yale he has Jerry Neri, one of the finest assistant coaches in the country, while across the country, eight employes carry the ball in his Beverly Hills insurance office. Olivar calls Thorne Shugart the finest all-round guard in his coaching career. . . . Basketball fans will get home earlier from Siena College games this winter at Albany Armory. Starting time has been moved up from 9 to 8 p. m. by the Rev. Maurus Fitzgerald, athletic director at Siena.

QUARTERBACK TOM GLOEDE, a Poughkeepsie High graduate, completed 7 of 14 passes last Saturday against Brown to set a new all-time Lehigh University passing record. The former Blues sharpshooter set a new record for the Engineers with his 1557 yards, 119 more than the former mark. John Nania is a cinch for the Coach of the Year award by the DUSO Sportswriters Association. . . . The best 'unknown' tackle in America is Wake Forest's Bob Bartholomew, who obliterated the Maryland running game and once, with South Carolina on the Deacons' 1-yard line, first and goal to go, made four straight tackles to stop the score. . . . Perhaps the largest crowd in Schenectady High School football history was lost Election Day when the Mont Pleasant-Nott Terrace game was canceled because polio hit a player on each side. Both teams were undefeated and are arch rivals. Michael Strauss of 353 Foxhurst Road, says the famous New York Cover Girls basketball team is available for Eastern bookings this season. The star in the cast is pretty Ethel LeNeu, who spins the basketball on her fingertips and does a clever takeoff on Harlem Glove Trotter shenanigans.

NEWBURGH DODGER JEWELS have just forwarded a press release announcing that "perhaps never before has a team accomplished so much in a short space of time as the 1954 Dodger Jewels." In one short season they had: 1, created renewed interest in semi-pro baseball in the area, (2) signed a workable working agreement with a major league baseball club, (3) seen one of their players (Joe Bayno) signed by a major league team (Brooklyn) and (4) won the Hudson valley semi-pro championship. The latter was accomplished in a series with Poughkeepsie. The Jewels won 15 and lost 8, tied 1.

But Locals Tie 4-2 for Weekend

Ellenville Shanahans defeated Jones Dairy, 2-1, in a brilliantly played match Saturday at Ellenville, but the Dairymen gained a standoff with the Hudson Valley League leaders in the weekend's doubleheader.

In the final twinbill of the season, the Shanahans scored 4-2 over Joneses and Elston Sports, while the Dairymen tripped Poughkeepsie Wolfs, 3-0, after the 2-1 setback to the Shanahans.

TIMMIE BILYEU smashed 642 as Shanahans compiled a 3039 triple on games of 1082, 903 and 1054. The Joneses were not far behind with 991, 1078 and 953 for 3032, their best series to date at home or abroad.

Frank Greco fired 634 and Sam Fisher 633 for the winners.

Charlie Manfro, red hot over the weekend, furnished 674 against Shanahans and 613 over Poughkeepsie Wolfs. John Ferraro posted 643 and 613. Larry Weishaupt drilled 607 at Ellenville.

Against Walden, Larry Petersen led with 612. Nick Leoce had 602 for the winners. Whitey Crispell posted 624 and George Shufeldt 608 against Mardi-Bobs.

ELSTON SPORTS had a 4-2 weekend, knocking off Spotlight Grill of Poughkeepsie, 3-0, in a road match as Jack Ferraro socked 589. At home, of course, they lost 2-1 to Shanahans, with Fred Rice setting the pace at 608. Sam Fisher knocked off 626 and Hank Kemmerer 615 for Shanahans.

RAPP'S EXPRESS broke even tripping Ellenville Economy, 2-1, as Ken Joseph socked 591 and taking one at Mardi-Bobs at Poughkeepsie. Buster Ferraro rolled 612 on the Bridge City drives.

Only Negroes can become citizens of Liberia and only citizens can own land.

As Pegler Sees It

and his two Democrats were repudiated so that they could make no claims on Ribicoff in the event of his success, which is now confirmed. Of course, he can always ingratiate himself with a politician with a gaudy spread of pictures and text depicting his simple, folksy domesticity and Ribicoff is human so Luce and wife may come back as Democrats in due time.

The confusion is confounded to utter chaos by the fact that Prescott Bush, the other Republican senator, also is a Park avenue Yank and a partner in Harriman's banking firm of Brown Brothers-Harriman.

The election of Clifford Case in New Jersey is a rather scrawny feather in Arthur J. Goldsmith's heterogeneous war bonnet. This character and Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania, got a writ of some kind from Eisenhower certifying that, as far as he knew, the Dragon of the Waldorf Tower was a respectable citizen. This put it up to Goldsmith to elect his man by the usual process of his letterhead groups and that finally came off, though just barely.

But certainly Case owes the Dragon small obligation in view of the narrowness of his victory. He couldn't have done much worse — and won. Scott also had a close call and, in these two conspicuous contests, the power of the Dragon's covert activities was nothing to swell his chest with pride, although he seems to swell with little justification.

There will be no repining even among the Republicans over the election of Jimmy Roosevelt to Congress. This result vindicated the most pessimistic opinions of the moral character and civic decency of the popular vote that ever were expressed in the speculations of the Founding Fathers. If they could vote for him in spite of the somewhat braggart squealing of a bounder who told all even in cases in which it seemed doubtful that he had anything to tell, no worse can be said.

The northern press and a good deal of the southern will have an awful time accommodating their knowledge of the Constitution with the election returns concerning an innovation called "integration" in the public schools and lodges. The Constitution does not apply to this issue at any point and the Supreme Court didn't have the gall to say it did. But the press has been loftily damning native Americans of ancient lineage for being "Uu-American" and "Undemocratic" by order of private political societies with offices in New York.

For every victory this time there is a measure of compensation on the debit side. And there is a dab of salve for every laceration.

CONCRETE STREETS
...An Extra Measure of Protection!

Pedestrians and motorists both have an extra measure of protection on concrete streets. Concrete's gritty texture is uniformly skid-resistant, wet or dry, so drivers can stop quicker and more safely in emergencies, without swerving or skidding.

Concrete streets offer an extra measure of protection at night. Their light-colored surface reflects more light than other pavements. You can see farther and better on concrete whether you're walking or driving. If you can't see, you can't be safe!

So put safety first—for yourself, your family, your friends and your neighbors. Insist on concrete for your streets. You'll get an extra measure of protection, night and day, rain and shine.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

A quick rundown on the current status of five members of the 1953-54 Kingston High School varsity basketball squad:

All-DUSO Dick Bezemer and Bill Haber, the best guard in the loop, are at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. Rollins is a small school (596 registration) but it has basketball ambitions. School officials burned up the long distance wires recruiting area talent last year. Watch it grow in the collegiate basketball world.

Long John Godwin is enrolled at New Paltz. Bob Bondar figures to nail down a varsity berth at Oneonta Teachers. Bucky Miller is doing PG work at KHS.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Worcester Tech, undefeated with Roger Billings at quarterback, outscored the opposition 137 to 13 in its first five games. They whipped Brooklyn College 63-0, Massachusetts Maritime, 35-7, Wesleyan 9-0, Coast Guard 6-0 and RPI, 26-6. Don Dahowski, All-DUSO end at Poughkeepsie and a top basketball player, is playing at the wings for Ed Danowski's Fordham Frosh. . . . Staff work is the key to Jordan Olivar's success. At Yale he has Jerry Neri, one of the finest assistant coaches in the country, while across the country, eight employes carry the ball in his Beverly Hills insurance office. Olivar calls Thorne Shugart the finest all-round guard in his coaching career. . . . Basketball fans will get home earlier from Siena College games this winter at Albany Armory. Starting time has been moved up from 9 to 8 p. m. by the Rev. Maurus Fitzgerald, athletic director at Siena.

QUARTERBACK TOM GLOEDE, a Poughkeepsie High graduate, completed 7 of 14 passes last Saturday against Brown to set a new all-time Lehigh University passing record. The former Blues sharpshooter set a new record for the Engineers with his 1557 yards, 119 more than the former mark. John Nania is a cinch for the Coach of the Year award by the DUSO Sportswriters Association. . . . The best 'unknown' tackle in America is Wake Forest's Bob Bartholomew, who obliterated the Maryland running game and once, with South Carolina on the Deacons' 1-yard line, first and goal to go, made four straight tackles to stop the score. . . . Perhaps the largest crowd in Schenectady High School football history was lost Election Day when the Mont Pleasant-Nott Terrace game was canceled because polio hit a player on each side. Both teams were undefeated and are arch rivals. Michael Strauss of 353 Foxhurst Road, says the famous New York Cover Girls basketball team is available for Eastern bookings this season. The star in the cast is pretty Ethel LeNeu, who spins the basketball on her fingertips and does a clever takeoff on Harlem Glove Trotter shenanigans.

NEWBURGH DODGER JEWELS have just forwarded a press release announcing that "perhaps never before has a team accomplished so much in a short space of time as the 1954 Dodger Jewels." In one short season they had: 1, created renewed interest in semi-pro baseball in the area, (2) signed a workable working agreement with a major league baseball club, (3) seen one of their players (Joe Bayno) signed by a major league team (Brooklyn) and (4) won the Hudson valley semi-pro championship. The latter was accomplished in a series with Poughkeepsie. The Jewels won 15 and lost 8, tied 1.

EARLY HUNTING BULLETIN: Wife: "Oscar, one of the ducks you shot yesterday phoned and left her number."

FIRST REPORTED CATCH of the bow and arrow deer season is made by William Ross and Kenneth Van Wagenen Sunday near Hurley. The deer was bagged with a bear hunting arrow.

Only Negroes can become citizens of Liberia and only citizens can own land.

As Pegler Sees It

and his two Democrats were repudiated so that they could make no claims on Ribicoff in the event of his success, which is now confirmed. Of course, he can always ingratiate himself with a politician with a gaudy spread of pictures and text depicting his simple, folksy domesticity and Ribicoff is human so Luce and wife may come back as Democrats in due time.

The confusion is confounded to utter chaos by the fact that Prescott Bush, the other Republican senator, also is a Park avenue Yank and a partner in Harriman's banking firm of Brown Brothers-Harriman.

The election of Clifford Case in New Jersey is a rather scrawny feather in Arthur J. Goldsmith's heterogeneous war bonnet. This character and Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania, got a writ of some kind from Eisenhower certifying that, as far as he knew, the Dragon of the Waldorf Tower was a respectable citizen. This put it up to Goldsmith to elect his man by the usual process of his letterhead groups and that finally came off, though just barely.

But certainly Case owes the Dragon small obligation in view of the narrowness of his victory. He couldn't have done much worse — and won. Scott also had a close call and, in these two conspicuous contests, the power of the Dragon's covert activities was nothing to swell his chest with pride, although he seems to swell with little justification.

There will be no repining even among the Republicans over the election of Jimmy Roosevelt to Congress. This result vindicated the most pessimistic opinions of the moral character and civic decency of the popular vote that ever were expressed in the speculations of the Founding Fathers. If they could vote for him in spite of the somewhat braggart squealing of a bounder who told all even in cases in which it seemed doubtful that he had anything to tell, no worse can be said.

The northern press and a good deal of the southern will have an awful time accommodating their knowledge of the Constitution with the election returns concerning an innovation called "integration" in the public schools and lodges. The Constitution does not apply to this issue at any point and the Supreme Court didn't have the gall to say it did. But the press has been loftily damning native Americans of ancient lineage for being "Uu-American" and "Undemocratic" by order of private political societies with offices in New York.

For every victory this time there is a measure of compensation on the debit side. And there is a dab of salve for every laceration.

CONCRETE STREETS
...An Extra Measure of Protection!

Pedestrians and motorists both have an extra measure of protection on concrete streets. Concrete's gritty texture is uniformly skid-resistant, wet or dry, so drivers can stop quicker and more safely in emergencies, without swerving or skidding.

Concrete streets offer an extra measure of protection at night. Their light-colored surface reflects more light than other pavements. You can see farther and better on concrete whether you're walking or driving. If you can't see, you can't be safe!

So put safety first—for yourself, your family, your friends and your neighbors. Insist on concrete for your streets. You'll get an extra measure of protection, night and day, rain and shine.

are still continuing and increasing their activity."

He praised the armed forces, which he said "in their autumn maneuvers employed all kinds of modern weapons showing that the military preparedness of our country is on a high, modern level."

Bulganin also congratulated the Russian people on their economic progress of the past year.

Bohlen said later he considered the speech mild on foreign affairs.

Flies to New York

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Actor Marlon Brando's French fiancee, 19-year-old Josanne Mariani, flew into New York today from Paris, tired and a little dismayed by all the to-do over her arrival. Photographers at Idlewild Airport babbled directions, and reporters peppered her with questions. Was her engagement to Brando for publicity purposes? "No, it is not," she said, looking chagrined. How about reports that Brando doesn't put much stock in engagements? "How can I answer that?" Miss Mariani said with a helpless gesture. "I don't believe he said it." No date has been set for the marriage, she added.

Holdings Are Sold

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 8 (AP)—Hungary announced today that the Soviet Union has sold her the Russian share in five joint Russian-Hungarian industrial undertakings and a bank. The five undertakings control oil, bauxite, aluminum, shipping on the Danube and other waters, and commercial airlines. Established in 1945, they were exempted from nationalization in 1949 and 1950 when most Hungarian industry, including plants owned by foreigners, was taken over by the state.

Airmen Charge

radioed for help and learned later that U. S. fighters were in the area within moments—even before all of the parachutes hit the ground.

IN WASHINGTON, the State Department said it was protesting the incident to Moscow.

In Tokyo, Gen. John E. Hull, U. S. Far East commander, said the direction of the crippled plane's fall "completely negates" any possible Soviet claim that the plane was over Russian territory. He accused the Russians of a "piratical" attack.

Asked if the Russian planes at any time intruded inside the three-mile limit marking Japanese waters, Feith said:

"Yes, I would say they were on their last pass."

Feith said when the MIGs were first spotted rising from about 10,000 feet he told his crew, "I don't think they would attack."

But moments later Airman 2/c Walter Lentz of 25-75 33rd street, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., shouted:

"They're firing."

The MIGs made two passes each, blasting at the big RB29 with both cannon and machine guns.

FEITH SAID his plane lurched. Flames, touched off by gasoline spewing from a wing tank, enveloped part of the craft.

Airman 3/c Earl E. Wimer of Elkins, W. Va., the tail gunner, said bullet holes suddenly appeared 18 inches above his head.

"I was scared," he recalled, adding that the MIGs "came straight in on the tail. When they started firing I was looking straight up the MIGs' intake pipes and the cannons underneath the pipes."

Moments later Feith ordered the crew to bail out.

"Everyone cleared the ship," he said.

Although the RB29 was armed, Feith said he could see no advantage in returning the Russian fire. His co-pilot, 1st Lt. David N. Oliver of Corvallis, Ore., said:

"I don't like getting shot at. I was made. But like the captain said, there was nothing to be gained by shooting at them."

OLIVER SAID just before the bailout he broke radio silence to announce the big plane had been attacked.

The crew members said the mass bailout occurred over a 10-mile strip as the burning plane floundered inland. It crashed about 35 miles from the attack area, scene of several clashes between U. S. and Soviet planes in past months.

In Tokyo, General Hull released this angry statement:

"With utmost indignation I must denounce the shooting down by two Soviet MIG fighter planes of a United States photographic plane yesterday.

"WITHOUT PROVOCATION these piratical planes pounced without warning upon an American aircraft which was peacefully engaged in a routine mission. Any claim by the Soviet attackers that our plane was over what they consider their territory is completely negated by the fall of the plane and of the survivors who parachuted from it on Hokkaido soil."

Yesterday's incident came just two months after the Russians shot down a U. S. Navy Neptune some 350 miles to the east in what the United States called a "wanton and unprovoked attack."

In July, 1953, a U. S. B50 disappeared over the Sea of Japan and the United States charged the Russians with shooting it down.

Another big plane, a B29 Superfort, disappeared Oct. 7, 1952 in the same general area as yesterday's incident.

Japanese fishermen later said they saw Russian planes shoot it down.

Claims President

mainland opened up with a 6,000-shell barrage against Chiang Kai-sheks forces on the island only seven miles away.

The article says also that the Quemoy affair spurred the President to renewed efforts to find a way out of the impasse of American policy in the Far East. It adds that the situation lies behind the strong accent on the search for peace which has appeared in recent Eisenhower statements on foreign policy.

THE SHELLING of Quemoy led Washington to believe that the Communists were softening up the Nationalist outpost for a possible landing. The Post and Times-Herald article says one quick result was Pentagon permission for Chiang's air force to bomb attacking artillery and search out and attack any troop and shipping concentrations in the Quemoy area.

Also within a day or two of the opening of the barrage, it says, a majority of the joint chiefs voted a recommendation to the President that the Nationalists be allowed immediately to bomb inland in Red China, and that American planes be allowed to make such strikes if an all-out attack on Quemoy developed.

NAMED AS VOTING for that recommendation are Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs, Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, air force chief of staff. The minority member was reported to be Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, army chief of staff.

Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith, acting State Department chief while Dulles was in Manila for the southeast Asia pact conference, is described as having sided strongly with Ridgway in dissent.

The recommendations were sent to Eisenhower and cabled to Dulles, who is reported to have cabled back his approval.

IN ITS ACCOUNT of a National Security Council meeting in Washington Sept. 9 the paper said Vice President Nixon, presiding in Eisenhower's absence, argued against any American move.

Action was postponed here because Eisenhower had accepted Undersecretary Smith's recommendation that a special Security Council session be held before any decision.

At the Denver meeting Radford is reported to have argued for action. Secretary of Defense Wilson is said to have favored action only after Communist "provocation."

Ridgway's dissent was said to have been based on the argument that air and naval action inevitably would call for foot soldiers and the army was not ready.

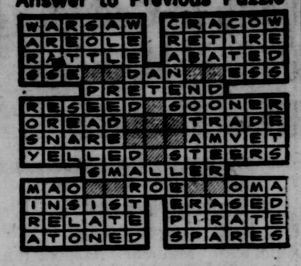
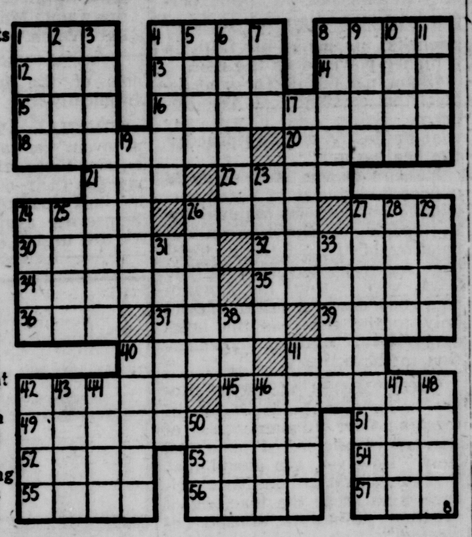
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Poetry Is for the Ears

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP)—Mrs. May Arbuthnot, professor emeritus at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, gave a teachers' meeting here this advice: "In the elementary schools, I think that poetry should be heard and not seen. If the children hear poetry first, it is much better and there is no need to terrorize them by demanding memory work."

Ives Had No

"smear" and accused Ives and Dewey of dealing in "lies."

Ives said he felt there were six reasons for his apparent defeat. They were, he said:

Overconfidence of his friends; his Senate vote for flexible farm price supports; his refusal to state whether he intended to vote for the censure of Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.); the harness track scandal charges hurled by the Democrats; the traditional off-year trend away from the party in power; bad weather Election Day.

He praised the armed forces, which he said "in their autumn maneuvers employed all kinds of modern weapons showing that the military preparedness of our country is on a high, modern level."

Bulganin also congratulated the Russian people on their economic progress of the past year.

Bohlen said later he considered the speech mild on foreign affairs.

Flies to New York

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Actor Marlon Brando's French fiancee, 19-year-old Josanne Mariani, flew into New York today from Paris, tired and a little dismayed by all the to-do over her arrival. Photographers at Idlewild Airport babbled directions, and reporters peppered her with questions. Was her engagement to Brando for publicity purposes? "No, it is not," she said, looking chagrined. How about reports that Brando doesn't put much stock in engagements? "How can I answer that?" Miss Mariani said with a helpless gesture. "I don't believe he said it." No date has been set for the marriage, she added.

Holdings Are Sold

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 8 (AP)—Hungary announced today that the Soviet Union has sold her the Russian share in five joint Russian-Hungarian industrial undertakings and a bank. The five undertakings control oil, bauxite, aluminum, shipping on the Danube and other waters, and commercial airlines. Established in 1945, they were exempted from nationalization in 1949 and 1950 when most Hungarian industry, including plants owned by foreigners, was taken over by the state.

Airmen Charge

radioed for help and learned later that U. S. fighters were in the area within moments—even before all of the parachutes hit the ground.

IN WASHINGTON, the State Department said it was protesting the incident to Moscow.

In Tokyo, Gen. John E. Hull, U. S. Far East commander, said the direction of the crippled plane's fall "completely negates" any possible Soviet claim that the plane was over Russian territory. He accused the Russians of a "piratical" attack.

Asked if the Russian planes at any time intruded inside the three-mile limit marking Japanese waters, Feith said:

"Yes, I would say they were on their last pass."

Feith said when the MIGs were first spotted rising from about 10,000 feet he told his crew, "I don't think they would attack."

But moments later Airman 2/c Walter Lentz of 25-75 33rd street, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., shouted:

"They're firing."

The MIGs made two passes each, blasting at the big RB29 with both cannon and machine guns.

FEITH SAID his plane lurched. Flames, touched off by gasoline spewing from a wing tank, enveloped part of the craft.

Airman 3/c Earl E. Wimer of Elkins, W. Va., the tail gunner, said bullet holes suddenly appeared 18 inches above his head.

"I was scared," he recalled, adding that the MIGs "came straight in on the tail. When they started firing I was looking straight up the MIGs' intake pipes and the cannons underneath the pipes."

Moments later Feith ordered the crew to bail out.

"Everyone cleared the ship," he said.

Although the RB29 was armed, Feith said he could see no advantage in returning the Russian fire. His co-pilot, 1st Lt. David N. Oliver of Corvallis, Ore., said:

"I don't like getting shot at. I was made. But like the captain said, there was nothing to be gained by shooting at them."

OLIVER SAID just before the bailout he broke radio silence to announce the big plane had been attacked.

The crew members said the mass bailout occurred over a 10-mile strip as the burning plane floundered inland. It crashed about 35 miles from the attack area, scene of several clashes between U. S. and Soviet planes in past months.

In Tokyo, General Hull released this angry statement:

"With utmost indignation I must denounce the shooting down by two Soviet MIG fighter planes of a United States photographic plane yesterday.

"WITHOUT PROVOCATION these piratical planes pounced without warning upon an American aircraft which was peacefully engaged in a routine mission. Any claim by the Soviet attackers that our plane was over what they consider their territory is completely negated by the fall of the plane and of the survivors who parachuted from it on Hokkaido soil."

Yesterday's incident came just two months after the Russians shot down a U. S. Navy Neptune some 350 miles to the east in what the United States called a "wanton and unprovoked attack."

In July, 1953, a U. S. B50 disappeared over the Sea of Japan and the United States charged the Russians with shooting it down.

Another big plane, a B29 Superfort, disappeared Oct. 7, 1952 in the same general area as yesterday's incident.

Japanese fishermen later said they saw Russian planes shoot it down.

Claims President

mainland opened up with a 6,000-shell barrage against Chiang Kai-sheks forces on the island only seven miles away.

The article says also that the Quemoy affair spurred the President to renewed efforts to find a way out of the impasse of American policy in the Far East. It adds that the situation lies behind the strong accent on the search for peace which has appeared in recent Eisenhower statements on foreign policy.

THE SHELLING of Quemoy led Washington to believe that the Communists were softening up the Nationalist outpost for a possible landing. The Post and Times-Herald article says one quick result was Pentagon permission for Chiang's air force to bomb attacking artillery and search out and attack any troop and shipping concentrations in the Quemoy area.

Also within a day or two of the opening of the barrage, it says, a majority of the joint chiefs voted a recommendation to the President that the Nationalists be allowed immediately to bomb inland in Red China, and that American planes be allowed to make such strikes if an all-out attack on Quemoy developed.

NAMED AS VOTING for that recommendation are Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs, Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, air force chief of staff. The minority member was reported to be Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, army chief of staff.

Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith, acting State Department chief while Dulles was in Manila for the southeast Asia pact conference, is described as having sided strongly with Ridgway in dissent.

The recommendations were sent to Eisenhower and cabled to Dulles, who is reported to have cabled back his approval.

IN ITS ACCOUNT of a National Security Council meeting in Washington Sept. 9 the paper said Vice President Nixon, presiding in Eisenhower's absence, argued against any American move.

Action was postponed here because Eisenhower had accepted Undersecretary Smith's recommendation that a special Security Council session be held before any decision.

At the Denver meeting Radford is reported to have argued for action. Secretary of Defense Wilson is said to have favored action only after Communist "provocation."

Ridgway's dissent was said to have been based on the argument that air and naval action inevitably would call for foot soldiers and the army was not ready.

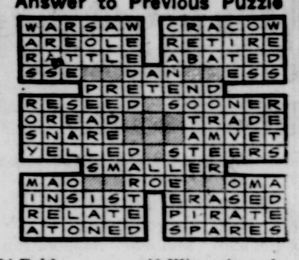
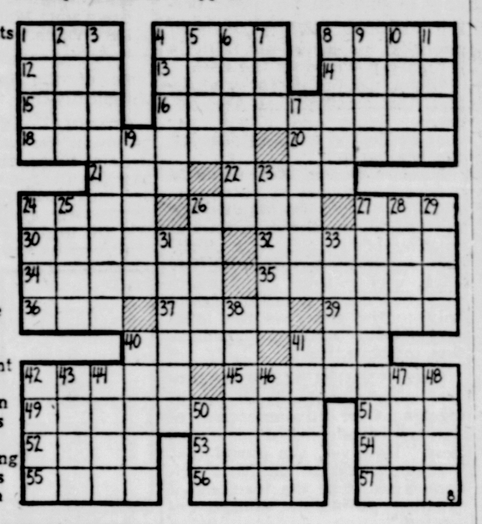
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Poetry Is for the Ears

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP)—Mrs. May Arbuthnot, professor emeritus at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, gave a teachers' meeting here this advice: "In the elementary schools, I think that poetry should be heard and not seen. If the children hear poetry first, it is much better and there is no need to terrorize them by demanding memory work."

Ives Had No

"smear" and accused Ives and Dewey of dealing in "lies."

Ives said he felt there were six reasons for his apparent defeat. They were, he said:

Overconfidence of his friends; his Senate vote for flexible farm price supports; his refusal to state whether he intended to vote for the censure of Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.); the harness track scandal charges hurled by the Democrats; the traditional off-year trend away from the party in power; bad weather Election Day.

Dunn, N. C. (AP)—Dunn Jaycees, operating a turkey shoot at the County Fair, moved a coop of turkeys to the exhibit tent for safekeeping overnight. The next morning the judges arrived before the turkey shoot opened. They looked the turkeys over and pinned a blue ribbon on the coop as the best on exhibit. A five dollar check went along with the ribbon.

Faith in God Is Part of Medicine Hess Declares

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (AP)—Dr. Elmer Hess, president-elect of the American Medical Association said today any doctor "who lacks faith in the Supreme Being "has no right to practice medicine.

"A physician who walks into a sick room is not alone," said the Erie, Pa., doctor who is a specialist in urology. "He can only minister to the ailing person with the material tools of scientific medicine—his faith in a higher power does the rest.

"Show me the doctor who denies the existence of the Supreme Being and I will say that he has no right to practice the healing art."

Hess made the statements in a prepared digest of extemporaneous remarks he planned for the opening of the 48th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association (SMA). The SMA, with a total membership of 10,000 doctors, ranks second only to the AMA as the largest general medical organization in the country.

"OUR MEDICAL SCHOOLS are doing a magnificent job of teaching the fundamentals of scientific medicine," declared Hess. "However, I'm afraid that the concentration on basic science is so great the teaching of spiritual values is almost neglected."

At another point he asserted: "Any man who enters the medical profession with financial gain as his sole objective is a discredit to his colleagues. The market place is where you go to make money, not the sick room. Doctors take care of sick folks —period."

The AMA official declared that organization has launched a long-range program designed to solve the medical care problems of the indigent and the chronically-ill.

"SPECIAL ATTENTION must be given," he said, "to the problems of those who are unable to pay for their own medical care or buy insurance to protect themselves against such costs. We are urging state and county medical societies to make this a major project."

He added:

.."THE AMA IS also vitally interested in creating a closer working relationship between the family doctor, psychiatrists and mental hospitals in caring for those who suffer from mental or emotional disturbances. There are over 10 million Americans in this category and more than half the nation's hospital beds are occupied by such patients.

"If there is any group of patients whose improvement and cure are dependent upon the need for a healthy, pleasant environment, good nutrition, adequate housing and competent professional and ancillary personnel, it certainly is this group of people with disturbed emotional and mental states.

"The conditions in some of our so-called mental hospitals are a disgrace to the nation."

Five Iranians Executed

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 8 (AP)—An army firing squad at dawn today executed five more officers convicted of spying for Soviet Russia.

To date 20 officers of the army, police or air force and one civilian have been executed in the crackdown on the widespread Red spy ring. An estimated 650 officers and civilians have been arrested in the roundup.

Those shot today were Army Cols. Mohammad Jelali, Kazim Djamsheedi and Mirafshar Bekeshloo, Army Maj. Jafar Vakili and Police Capt. Mohammad Bagher Waleh.

Denies Aly's Motion

White Plains, Nov. 8 (AP)—Children's Court Judge George W. Smyth has denied a motion by Prince Aly Khan for a further hearing in the custody case involving Yasmin, small daughter of the prince and actress Rita Hayworth, it was announced today. The court, which gave no opinion with its denial, said it made its decision on the motion over the weekend. Aly Khan asked the hearings last Aug. 2 after Miss Hayworth, now wed to singer Dick Haymes, was accused of neglecting her daughters, Yasmin, 5, and Rebecca Welles, 9.

Twelve U. S. states and the District of Columbia require the reading of the Bible in public schools.

A five dollar check went along with the ribbon.

Faith in God Is Part of Medicine Hess Declares

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (AP)—Dr. Elmer Hess, president-elect of the American Medical Association said today any doctor "who lacks faith in the Supreme Being "has no right to practice medicine.

"A physician who walks into a sick room is not alone," said the Erie, Pa., doctor who is a specialist in urology. "He can only minister to the ailing person with the material tools of scientific medicine—his faith in a higher power does the rest.

"Show me the doctor who denies the existence of the Supreme Being and I will say that he has no right to practice the healing art."

Hess made the statements in a prepared digest of extemporaneous remarks he planned for the opening of the 48th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association (SMA). The SMA, with a total membership of 10,000 doctors, ranks second only to the AMA as the largest general medical organization in the country.

"OUR MEDICAL SCHOOLS are doing a magnificent job of teaching the fundamentals of scientific medicine," declared Hess. "However, I'm afraid that the concentration on basic science is so great the teaching of spiritual values is almost neglected."

At another point he asserted: "Any man who enters the medical profession with financial gain as his sole objective is a discredit to his colleagues. The market place is where you go to make money, not the sick room. Doctors take care of sick folks —period."

The AMA official declared that organization has launched a long-range program designed to solve the medical care problems of the indigent and the chronically-ill.

"SPECIAL ATTENTION must be given," he said, "to the problems of those who are unable to pay for their own medical care or buy insurance to protect themselves against such costs. We are urging state and county medical societies to make this a major project."

He added:

.."THE AMA IS also vitally interested in creating a closer working relationship between the family doctor, psychiatrists and mental hospitals in caring for those who suffer from mental or emotional disturbances. There are over 10 million Americans in this category and more than half the nation's hospital beds are occupied by such patients.

"If there is any group of patients whose improvement and cure are dependent upon the need for a healthy, pleasant environment, good nutrition, adequate housing and competent professional and ancillary personnel, it certainly is this group of people with disturbed emotional and mental states.

"The conditions in some of our so-called mental hospitals are a disgrace to the nation."

Five Iranians Executed

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 8 (AP)—An army firing squad at dawn today executed five more officers convicted of spying for Soviet Russia. To date 20 officers of the army, police or air force and one civilian have been executed in the crackdown on the widespread Red spy ring. An estimated 650 officers and civilians have been arrested in the roundup.

Those shot today were Army Cols. Mohammad Jelali, Kazim Djamsheedi and Mirafshar Bekeshloo, Army Maj. Jafar Vakili and Police Capt. Mohammad Bagher Waleh.
